

'Rock-a-Billy, Rock, Rock, Rock,' Intones Counsel

By STEWART MACLEOD
LONDON (CP)—With the dignity expected of a Queen's counsel, K. E. Shelley stood before a wigged judge in high court yesterday and presented his case.

"Rock-a-billy, rock-a-billy, rock-a-billy rock," he said, while the judge listened attentively with cocked ear.

Mr. Justice McNair studied every repetitious word that echoed through the high, paneled room. It was his lot to decide whether "Rock-a-Billy," as printed in the Sunday Pictorial, had actually infringed the copyright of "Rock-a-Billy."

The plaintiff in the action, Joy Music Limited, offered the opinion that "Rock-a-Billy," besides infringing the Rock-a-Billy copyright was

"disrespectful and offensive to Prince Philip."

'Stone Me!' 'My Word!' 'How Nice!'

LONDON (Reuters)—"Well, stone me," said the Cockney and "My word!" said the blueblood Friday night to the news that Princess Margaret is to wed.

Public reaction to the announcement that the princess, 29, will marry photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, also 29, was one of congratulations and good wishes.

"We wish them all the happiness in the world," intoned the head waiter at the Society, one of the ritzy night clubs Margaret often frequents.

SOME SURPRISE
But there was some surprise that Margaret's fiancée was not so well known to the man in the street.

"One of those court photographer fella's, isn't he," said

A middle-aged lady clutching an umbrella told a reporter: "Another royal wedding? How nice. Royal weddings are so wonderful, aren't they?"

In Paris, the bride of Peter Townsend, former suitor to the princess, said: "Peter and I have known about this for a long time. We are very pleased."

B.C. HONEYMOON?
Canadian reaction ranged from Prime Minister Diefenbaker's "just wonderful" to CCF House Leader Hazen Argue's hope the couple will spend their honeymoon in Canada.

British Columbians were quick to note the princess owns Portland Island in the Strait of Georgia, B.C.'s gift during her 1958 visit.

HIGH ESTEEM
Montreal lawyer John Turner, stepson of B.C.'s Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and a favorite dancing partner of the princess when she was in Canada, said: "It's wonderful news. I met the chap Armstrong-Jones once before and I have him in high esteem."

Through The Eyes Of Love

Margaret-by Antony
Love's vision of a princess is this soft-toned portrait of Margaret that was taken by her fiancé, Antony Armstrong-Jones, to mark her 29th birthday last August in the Royal Lodge at Windsor. The Queen Mother announced the couple's engagement yesterday.—(AP Photofax.)

Soft-Spoken Tony Lives by Laundry

LONDON (AP)—Soft-spoken Tony Armstrong-Jones, husband-to-be of Princess Margaret, will give up his basement-bedroom next door to a laundry next week to move into Buckingham Palace.

"He's the sort of a fellow who could feel at home either place."

The 29-year-old photographer puts about his makeshift studio-apartment in a suede jacket and baggy trousers, playing jazz records and doing his own cooking.

"I used to smell it," said Mrs. Gladys Muldowney, who lives on the floor above.

The witty son of a three-married lawyer, Tony overcame a bout with polio in his youth.

Despite his success in photography, he never moved from his study in unfashionable Pimlico.

He achieved a minor fame among the Chelsea set for his gay parties.

None of his parties, however, matched the occasion when he lost his trousers during a coming-out dance for a debutante.

NEW YORK (UP)—The mother of Robin Joyner, 4, "rag doll" hit-run victim, appealed yesterday to the cab driver who struck and killed her daughter to give himself up.

Mrs. Flossie Joyner, 25, made her appeal Friday morning over TV and radio.

"I appeal to the cab driver who thought it was a rag doll."

come forward with any information leading to his arrest, the Negro mother said.

Mrs. Joyner's daughter was struck by a taxi Wednesday. The cabbie stopped, told witnesses he was taking Robin to a hospital, and drove off.

The little girl's body was found later under a parked car about half a mile away by a passer-by who thought it was a rag doll.

TRUTH ABOUT RADIATION NATIONAL GROUP'S AIM

Dr. Keenleyside Will Lead Voluntary Civilian Committee

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside will head a newly-formed national committee for control of radiation hazards, it was announced here yesterday.

He said the aim of the voluntary citizens' group is to "strengthen the hand" of the federal government in Canada's bid for international control of nuclear weapons tests by the UN.

PRESS CONFERENCE
The group issued its manifesto at press conferences held simultaneously in Victoria, Montreal, Toronto and Edmonton. It said the problem of increasing radioactivity, "affecting as it does every human being on earth and every child yet to be born, is too serious to be left to scientists alone . . ."

Members of the committee—including UBC president Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, A. E. Grauer, Walter C. Koerner, and Dr. Brock Chisholm from B.C.—said they believe all Canadians should be concerned with this vitally important issue.

NOT JUST FEW
"All Canadians—and not just a few experts or officials—are entitled to know the facts, as far as these can be ascertained. . . . (And) knowing the facts, all Canadians have a right and indeed a duty to make their views known as to what should be done about them."

In getting and assessing the facts on radiation, the national committee will have the assistance of a committee of scientists. Dr. Keenleyside said this group hasn't yet been formed.

The committee announced four objectives:

- Immediate cessation of nuclear tests by all countries, enforced by inspection, preferably under UN supervision.

- Intensified research into the effects of all types of ionizing radiation.

- Enforcement of regulations to minimize radiation hazards.

- Restriction of the use of radiation techniques to properly qualified scientific persons operating under conditions established by competent scientific bodies.

Dr. Keenleyside was appointed provisional chairman of the group. He said plans call for holding of a national conference on radiation hazards in Montreal "probably in April."

ALL CANADA
At this conference, said Dr. Keenleyside, policies of the NCCR will be submitted for endorsement "to a large number of like-minded people drawn from all parts of Canada."

Dr. Keenleyside said the 44-member committee represents a wide range of professions and callings and its members live in centres reaching from Halifax to Victoria.

The list includes four university presidents, representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, businessmen, newspapermen, scientists, a labor leader, artists such as photographer Yousuf Karsh, novelist Hugh MacLennan.

It contains no politicians. This was deliberate, said Dr. Keenleyside. He added: "No doubt many (politicians) would have signed the

France Favors Bases

PARIS (Reuters)—France threw her doors wide open Friday for West German military bases on French soil.

President de Gaulle's government also gave wholehearted endorsement to Germany's demand for bases in other foreign countries.

Meanwhile Bonn said that Germany's Atlantic Pact allies were notified of her intention to seek bases in Spain about a year ago, well before negotiations began.

Professing no knowledge of this notification Washington yesterday told Germany that any plans for supply bases in Spain should have been cleared with NATO.

Krupp Rejects Spanish Deal

BONN, Germany (UPI)—German steel king Alfred Krupp, who supplied arms for Hitler in the Second World War, has turned down an offer to participate in making Spanish arms, informed industrial sources said yesterday.

No-Confidence Vote

Only Liberals Deny Support

The debate on Premier Bennett's $331,000,000 budget concluded in the legislature yesterday with the traditional vote on a motion of no confidence in the government.

But only the two Liberal members (Archie Gibbs of Oak Bay is sick in hospital) voted against the government.

The vote was 41-2. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan explained that just because the CCF voted for the home-owner grant and some measures, it didn't mean to say "we believe in some of the fiscal hoopla of this government."

Liberal House leader George Gregory said the Liberals voted against the government because they have a lack of confidence in the government.

"Liberals are no less concerned for the sick, the needy, the home-owner and those in search of education," he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

TOM FRANCIS has put the politicians to shame. The 82-year-old Saanich pioneer, whose house burned down recently, has offered his 160-acre homestead, free, to the people as a park.

Right next to his property is city-owned Thetis Lake Park. One group of aldermen wanted to sell B.C. Electric the right to run a power line through part of the park, and use the $5,000-odd revenue from that to "develop" the park.

Some aldermen wanted to log part of the park and use the proceeds of that for "development"—meaning the construction of roads, trails, bridges and various public conveniences.

They held the curious belief that a park should earn its own living.

No doubt they meant well. They hoped to save the city taxpayers from being imposed upon by all those bums from Saanich, provincial territory, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, who used the park and paid nothing for it.

In order to thwart the evil designs of these freeloaders, they were willing to remove timber and run a power line through an "inaccessible" portion of the park.

But Tom Francis has put them to shame. He is an old man with no resources except a 160-acre piece of land. And he has offered to give that piece of land free of charge to be kept for future generations as a wild playground area.

He didn't try to sell part of it to finance any "improvements." He just offered it, outright, to posterity.

Now the provincial government is pondering whether or not to take over the whole of the Thetis Lake property, as well as Tom Francis' place, as a provincial park.

City fathers aren't fussy about giving the park to the province. One alderman said that the property was worth an estimated $5,000 an acre, and that its total estimated value of $6,000,000 would provide a new city hall, a new auditorium and better streets at no cost to the taxpayer.

Yes, but where could the city buy a new wilderness area to take its place?

Whether the province takes charge of the park, or the city keeps it, or the property is entrusted to an intermunicipal committee—Tom Francis' action is a fine example to everybody.

If Tom Francis can afford to forget self-interest and think about future generations, our local and provincial politicians should be able to do the same.

Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association is campaigning to build a new cabin for Mr. Francis, who lost all his possessions (except his land) in the recent fire.

Contributions can go to Miss M. Melburn, 2397 Heron Street.

Big Deficit

Finance Minister Fleming last night told the Commons the government has a $108,500,000 budgetary deficit with two months to go in the fiscal year. He forecast a deficit of $393,000,000 for the year last spring.

Ottawa Roundup

Train Workers To Curtail Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative and a Liberal teamed in the Commons yesterday to call for more vocational training as a weapon against unemployment in the automation area.

J. W. Pickersgill (L, Bonaville-Twillington) and J. C. Van Horne (PC, Restigouche-Madawaska) found themselves in agreement on this point, despite the fact Mr. Van Horne had described Mr. Pickersgill as "a bird-in-the-box" who is "taken seriously nowhere."

NOT SEASONAL Mr. Pickersgill, who spoke twice during the debate—the fifth day on the $15,000,000 supplementary estimate for the 1959-60 winter works program—said unemployment no longer is a seasonal problem. Each recession brought more automated processes to industry as it sought to become more efficient. With the

Summit Needs Asia, Africa Khrushchev Tells Indonesia

JAKARTA (AP)—Premier Khrushchev told Indonesia's Parliament Friday that Asia and Africa should be represented at the summit. But he added, "maybe the time is not yet ripe."

The touring Soviet leader bitterly criticized Japan, supported Indonesia's claims to Dutch West New Guinea, lambasted the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, denounced colonialism and preached co-existence and world disarmament.

Toll Men Fired

OTTAWA (UPI)—Two unidentified toll officers on Montreal's Jacques Cartier Bridge have been fired for a breach of regulations, the National Harbors Board announced Friday. They deposited toll fares instead of having drivers do it.

His 46-minute speech was received mostly in silence by an audience of 300, including foreign diplomats.

President Sukarno was absent.

Khrushchev declared Sukarno's bid for representation at the summit "is the only one which is right." He said other summit members had turned down a Russian proposal to include neutral nations such as India, and "maybe the time is not yet ripe to arrange a more representative summit conference."

But the Big Four meeting in Paris will lead to wider talks where African and Asian nations will have their say, he said.

Applause broke out only once—when Khrushchev said Russia supported Indonesia in her struggle to get possession of West New Guinea from the Netherlands.

Store Official:

'Bonus' Unlike Stamps

A "bonus card" game which has brought an estimated 15,000 more customers per week into B.C. Shop-Easy Stores has not led to any price increase in merchandise, the legislature's special committee on trading stamps was told yesterday.

A brief presented for the 57-store chain by J. D. Montgomery of Vancouver was the first in defence of promotional devices to be heard by the committee. Mr. Montgomery said that the bonus card game should not be classified with trading stamps, as it has been in previous briefs.

OVERHEAD DOWN

"We have not increased the price of our merchandise to pay for the cost of the plan," he said, adding that store overhead costs are reduced by the larger sales volume brought about by the game, and that the savings are in turn passed to the customers in the form of the game's prizes.

Mr. Montgomery argued that no legislation is needed to govern promotions, because the customers through their patronage or lack of it would indicate whether any promotion was in their best interest.

However, a brief from the Victoria Chamber of Commerce took issue with his claim that increased business reduces overhead and pays the cost of promotion outlay. "Such a claim is true only in the short run and only for a limited number of firms in any field," the brief read.

Oil Inquiry 'Just Waste'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Howard Coxon, manager of Imperial Oil Co.'s B.C. marketing division, said Wednesday a royal commission into the B.C. oil industry would be a waste of taxpayers' money.

He said the inquiry would discover "just what everyone already knows."

Mr. Coxon said no dealers are being exploited.

"The industry is passing through a period of intense competition which has brought abnormally low gasoline prices in the lower mainland," said Mr. Coxon.

He was commenting on criticism in the legislature by Social Credit and CCF members.

Cheapness of Power Yardstick for BCPC

By ALEC MERRIMAN

AXEL WENNER-GREN
... welcome?

At Foreigners

'Don't Sneer'—Bonner

Attorney-General Robert Bonner warned the legislature yesterday about "sneering at foreigners who want to come and live here."

He was obviously aiming his remarks at Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) who earlier in the day had drawn attention of the legislature to the 62.8 per cent control of Peace River Power Development Company by Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

$5,400,000 PROFIT
Mr. Harding also said Wenner-Gren's executive assistant Bernard Gore controlled 10.2 per cent of the stock and had already realized an estimated $5,400,000 profit, about 200 per cent on investment, by the sale of some of his stock in the company.

Mr. Bonner referred to the Peace River project and said as a private project there are men willing to put in a lot of money to see if it is feasible.

WRONG TO ATTACK
"If someone from Sweden wants to do that, I don't think we will be the losers. You can't take a dam site back to Sweden," Mr. Bonner said.

"If we were to take a wrong attitude toward foreigners and especially about foreign money, there would be a lot of us walking around in a very seedy condition," Mr. Bonner warned.

He said it was wrong to attack a policy because it is believed there is some foreign control.

The B.C. Power Commission has no agreement to take even 1 kilowatt of power from the Peace River Power Development Company and will make no such agreement unless the Peace River company can offer power cheaper than the BCPC can deliver power itself.

That is the pledge exacted by the CCF opposition yesterday from Lands and Forests Minister and power commissioner Ray Williston during the full scale debate on power which started in the legislature yesterday.

CONTINUE MONDAY

The debate began under the premier's estimates and will continue on Monday.

Power comes under the premier's department.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) challenged the government to fight the election on the power question, when he spoke to the House earlier yesterday in the budget debate.

Mr. Williston said the Peace River Company will have to match the commission in power costs, but if it does and it is considered good business and power can be delivered cheaper in the northland by the Peace company, the B.C. Hydro will sign an agreement.

THERMAL PLANTS

B.C. Hydro serves the areas with a number of thermal plants which use natural gas. W. C. Mainwaring, president of the Peace River company, has stated his company could not go ahead with the $630,000,000 development without firm contracts from B.C. Hydro and B.C. Electric.

Yesterday's debate was hot and there were several flare-ups.

"This is our policy," Premier Bennett said. "We believe agreement will be made with the United States on the Columbia. This government will do everything to expedite development of the Columbia ... and the Peace River will not hold back the Columbia."

EQUALLY CONCERNED

"We are equally concerned with the development of the Peace, provided the water controller says its feasible. "By 1980 it will cost double what it will cost now," the premier said.

Mr. Harding asked that if the B.C. Hydro could develop power for the Prince George area cheaper from the Clearwater than it could buy it from the Peace River company, would the premier then pledge not to buy power from the Peace River company.

"We haven't any agreement with any company," the premier countered.

"If you are interested in the customers, you would say yes," Mr. Harding replied.

GET ADVICE

"We will get advice from the BCPC," the premier answered.

The premier said the provincial government would be unable to stretch its financing to include the Columbia and the Peace River, but Mr. Strachan argued that neither project will be developed in one or two years and that it would be possible to finance them over a period of years.

Mr. Harding claimed that Columbia River power could be delivered to Vancouver for 2 mills, but that Peace power would cost 7 mills in Vancouver and maybe 10 mills on Vancouver Island.

"Kill the Peace River and we will never make a deal on the Columbia River satisfactory to B.C.," Premier Bennett said.

Freed of Charges

President of Canadian Javelin Ltd. John C. Doyle was freed of charges of conspiracy, theft and fraud involving $4,800,000 worth of Javelin stock in a Montreal court yesterday.

MINERAL RECORD

Canada's mineral production for 1959 was estimated at a record total of $2,389,683,000, a 13-per-cent gain over 1958.

Van Rie Ordeal Ends

BOSTON (UPI) — Willem van Rie yesterday ended 14½ hours on the witness stand with a simple, "No, sir" denial that he beat and drowned his shipboard sweetheart.

The two syllables, spoken in a clear, even voice, ended two days of relentless cross-examination in which the soft-spoken Dutchman never lost his composure.

He is accused of beating blue-eyed Lynn Kauffman to death in her cabin the night of Sept. 18 and throwing the Chicago divorcee into Boston Harbor.

Although assistant district attorney John F. McAuliffe drew some apparent contradictions from van Rie, the handsome defendant stuck to his basic story:

That he invented a "false statement" that he quarreled with Lynn in her cabin that night; that he was "dead scared" when he was arrested for murder Sept. 30 and "very upset" after 17 hours of questioning; and that he was "too friendly" with the fun-loving passenger and never quarreled with her.

Van Rie's co-counsel, Walter Powers Jr., said he would not put his client through redirect examination.

Father Tried to Kill Retarded Daughter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A 34-year-old garage mechanic was charged Friday with intent to kill after admitting he tried to "do away with" his retarded seven-year-old daughter by giving her 12 aspirin tablets dissolved in water.

William McKim, Monroe, Pa., who has five other children, admitted to police he attempted to kill his daughter Ellen Frances, who is partially blind and unable to speak.

McKim said he plotted the child's death because "she had been getting on my wife's nerves and I decided she would be better off dead."

Cominco plans for Progress

IRON and STEEL for the WEST

When Cominco's iron and steel plant is in full operation at Kimberley, the west will have a convenient, nearby source of metals that are basic to industrial growth.

Cominco's iron and steel production will be the first of its kind in Western Canada. Since 1923, Cominco has stored millions of tons of iron concentrate from its mining operations at Kimberley. This raw material is to be transformed into pig iron and high quality steel to meet the needs of a growing western market.

A unique feature of Cominco's new plant will be the first use in North America of the electro-thermic reduction process for iron and steel ore. A successful and widely used European development, this method produces superior quality steel and is well adapted to take advantage of Cominco's ample hydro-electric power supply.

Cominco has produced base metals — lead and zinc — since the turn of the century and chemical fertilizers for nearly thirty years. The addition of another basic commodity, iron and steel, adds once again to the Company's contribution to Canada's growth.

Mr. Chant's Threat

PUBLIC Works Minister Chant manifested a capacity for distorting a case when in the House on Thursday he took belated issue with an editorial which had appeared in the Colonist on Dec. 4 last. The editorial is reprinted at the foot of these columns so that readers may see exactly what has aroused Mr. Chant's wrath.

Newspapers are accustomed to explosions from members of a provincial cabinet whenever something is printed displeasing to them as politicians. In this case, since the circumstances of the city's tax roll and the activities of the CIDC are well known, Mr. Chant's shrill outburst and misinterpretation of what the editorial plainly stated would be of no great importance if it were not for the threat to which his complaint led.

Near the end of his reference to this matter Mr. Chant, who also represents Victoria in the legislature, made what was for a cabinet minister an amazing statement. He said: "Frankly, this kind of attitude is destructive. Persisted in it could discourage further CIDC grants and delay construction of government buildings and government assisted buildings in Victoria."

The only possible construction which can be placed on such a threat is that decision as to the undertaking of public buildings and works in the city of Victoria will not necessarily rest on public necessity but may be influenced by what some newspaper has said about the government. If that is what Mr. Chant really means by his astonishing warning — and what else could it mean? — then it is more than time his portfolio were given to someone with a higher appreciation of the responsibilities of cabinet rank.

A minister who would even consider taking revenge upon a city for something which appeared in one of its newspapers surely has no place in public office.

A Royal Romance

THE engagement of Princess Margaret, coming after the birth of a second son to the Queen a week ago, is another royal announcement that will stir the world because of its human interest. It has, too, the exciting element of surprise, for no previous hint of this romance had reached a public which has anticipated the personal affairs of the Princess for a full decade.

This aspect adds piquancy to the betrothal, and to the Queen's subjects everywhere the unexpected is likely to be received with pleasure. It is the norm that when a girl gives her heart this should be an occasion of much delight, and when the central figure is a vivacious princess for whom is wished a happy married future the attraction is intensified.

In Great Britain particularly, where the monarchy is the core of national life, the Princess's choice will be widely hailed. Her betrothal to a commoner extends the blood royal into realms which reflect the fortunate circumstance that permits modern royalty to marry without restraint of court policy. As with brides-to-be of lesser estate Princess Margaret follows the dictates of her own heart.

Announcement of her union to Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones, son of a QC and an English countess, thus ends the speculation that probably to her embarrassment has enveloped the Princess in recent years. A queen's sister lacks the privacy that is the privilege of a queen's subjects, but it has been a measure of public goodwill that induced the widespread desire that Princess Margaret should find happiness in marriage.

The betrothal carries with it the spoken delight of the Queen Mother and of the Sovereign herself, and this will be shared by everyone who feels that the most important day of womanhood is about to dawn for a princess who is widely popular and for whom universal good wishes will be voiced on this happy occasion.

Intolerant Attitude

WITH respect to all individuals in their freedom to think as they may see fit, we believe that it would be a mistake to interject a note of religious difference into the consideration of ordinary public affairs. The written protest of the Loyal Orange Association to the city council against municipal subscription to one of Victoria's two general hospitals would appear to rest on denominational grounds. It is not so that Victoria has regarded St. Joseph's Hospital, which for a century has been giving able and non-denominational service to every category and creed of citizen who stood in need of hospital care.

This community has been fortunate in having two such institutions as the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals which through the years have given splendid service, comparable with the best standards in the country. Neither of them strictly is publicly-owned. The donors, sponsors and patrons of the Jubilee stand in the same human relationship to the community as do the Sisters of St. Anne. Both institutions in recent years have badly outgrown their existing accommodation; and both have had their appeals to make to the community in that regard. The interjection of religious differences into a situation where there is neither call nor justification for it would, in our view, merely confuse the issue. Also it would be evidence of intolerance Victoria can well do without.

It will be for the city and district municipalities to consider what form of assistance, if any, they can offer to one of these two indispensable general hospitals on the merits of that case itself. Only recently Victoria participated in the rehabilitation of the privately-owned Chinese infirmary. It did so without any thought of color or creed, on the basis of sober human need. It would be a wholly retrogressive step if, after 102 years of public ownership, a united community, this city should change its inherent sensibility and sound commonsense in that regard.

What the Colonist Said Dec. 4, 1959

Neglected Promise

WORKS carried out by the Capital Improvement District Commission have enhanced the look of Greater Victoria, but the provincial government needs to be reminded that the plan in no way helps the city with its budget problems. The many handsome improvements which have been made are in the nature of embellishments or ornamentation—all very nice to have but like the gift of a TV set to a hard-pressed family, of no assistance in the meeting of running expenses.

This is not what the City of Victoria was promised, or led to hope for, when Premier Bennett's government was campaigning for election. The Social Credit candidates on the public platform took note of Victoria's exceptional problems as the seat of government, with large provincial holdings exempt from taxation. Victoria was told that it was a special case which would receive special consideration to redress the inequity of tax exemptions. The capital improvement plan is all there is to show for that promise; and not by any stretch of the word could it be described as fulfillment.

In point of fact municipalities which have little or no provincial property within their boundaries are deriving more benefit than Victoria itself. Public Works Minister Chant this week made a point of the fact that to date the Province has provided some $750,000 for beautification of the Greater Victoria area. He omitted mention of the fact that only about a quarter of that sum was spent in the city.

Let's say the city's share since the beginning was $250,000. (Mr. Chant disputes this figure, says the proportion is 60 per cent. We accept his statement.) That figure is chosen because it is approximately the sum which the city should receive in one year if provincial properties were taxable or if the province made a grant to the city in lieu of taxes and equal to the amount which those taxes would yield. Since the Social Credit government took office the city has lost well over a million dollars through these tax exemptions. Because of them also the city's tax rate is three mills higher than it otherwise need be.

For the Victoria taxpayer it is these facts which take the gift off the gingerbread of CIDC projects.

All God's Chillun

IT is more than well known that there is some discrepancy between the value that the South African government places on the value of the living blacks as compared with the living whites.

Apartheid now apparently extends to the grave—and beyond. Over 400 miners died in the Coalbrook mining disaster. Four hundred and twenty-five were Africans. Six were whites. The compensation to these luckless men is not the same as their equality in death below the sun-light.

The widow or nearest dependant of the dead Africans will be paid a lump sum of $180 from the government in terms of the Workmen's Compensation Act. That's their lot. After that they are free to starve.

The widows or nearest dependants of the half-dozen whites will receive a lump sum of $113 plus a monthly pension of $13.11 4d. In addition, there will be a monthly allowance of $6.15 8d for each child up to the age of three.

All God's chillun may have wings but in South Africa some of them get severely clipped when Father with a dark skin dies.

Sounding Brasshats

Selling Their Lives Dearly

By CASSANDRA, from London
THE text for today is the First Book of Corinthians, Chapter XIII, Verse 1:

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal."

I do not think generals, as a class, have not charity. But, by the god of Mars, I think they lack as a tinkling cymbal.

No body of men, who in the 1939 war imposed the greatest gag of silence on those who had served under them, have opened their mouths louder and wider after the battle — mainly to prove that what they did was right. Their memoirs are multitudinous and, to quote an old but nevertheless perceptive crack, they sold their lives dearly.

The latest recruit to this vociferous phalanx is no other than General George Grivas of Eoka. His pen is now reported to be reaching for the pad and a film company is said to be grasping for his ferocious philosophies.

Our own generals, of course, have surpassed themselves. Monty, McCreery, Alanbrooke, Horrocks, Uncle Auchinleck and all have told their Sandhurst tale.

General de Gaulle has raised the troubled flag for St. Cyr. And General Eisenhower and his fatuous lieutenant, General Mark Clark, have dumpeed the U.S. Army right into the grateful arms of the publishers. The game of split-and-tell is now having an interesting postscript.

Who are those among our major military luminaries who have preserved the precious gift of silence over what they did, whom they knew and why they were so intolerably right over the last war in Europe?

I will name you three, and they are easily the most important trio in a tiny remaining cell of military Trappist Monks who have apparently sworn to that most difficult of all vows—the vow of silence.

Earl Mountbatten of Burma. Earl Alexander of Tunis. General Sir Brian Robertson of Marylebone.

Bless 'em. Bless 'em all.

Reports from Ottawa

IF you had been sitting in on the foreign affairs debate in the Commons the last couple of weeks, you might be excused for wondering what it was intended to do.

Was it to enable the government to get the opinions of the House so government policies would be the wisest and the most commanding of general support that could be devised?

Or was it to enable the government to assert that it has all situations under firm control, that Canada's influence and prestige in international councils have never been higher, and that Lester Pearson is a has-been in this business?

In the end you might have come to the conclusion that the government does not want a bi-partisan approach to foreign relations, and that the prime minister would rather be wrong than accept any advice from Liberal leader Pearson.

A good many members of the House are keenly interested in foreign affairs, but only three can qualify as experts on the basis of long experience in and knowledge of contemporary international political events. Foremost is Pearson. Next are Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the Liberals' Paul Martin. Howard Green has brought much ability and enthusiasm to the foreign portfolio, but as yet he is only a talented rookie in this league.

Before Suez, foreign policy was about the one matter on which there was rarely any disagreement between Liberals and Conservatives. This was partly by design—the Liberal government and the Conservative opposition both realized that unanimity strengthened Canada's hand abroad. But perhaps it was due more to the fact that foreign affairs did not seem to the Tories to be a field in which they could make political hay. When they found that they could make hay over Suez, this bipartisanship-by-default was discarded.

Suez is long since past, and the hay the Conservatives cut then with their charge that Canada had betrayed Britain is pretty mouldy in the light of Sir Anthony Eden's recent tribute to Canada's role in the Suez affair. Yet foreign affairs remains a field of political controversy in the Commons. There is still hay to be made.

On the eve of the East-West, disarmament conference to which such adjectives as "momentous" and "fateful" and "crucial" are being applied, it would seem that the greatest public benefit would flow from the three experts and the brilliant rookie pooling their experience, knowledge and know-how.

There is no reason why Diefenbaker and Green should not heed Pearson and Martin in the Commons and also consult with them privately, so that whatever Canada proposes and does in the disarmament commission will be the fruit of the best minds and the greatest experience in the country.

No reason—except petty party politics. Except an almost pathological obsession with belittling Pearson's reputation, denying his abilities, beating his record and obliterating his public image.

Consultative political bipartisanship in foreign affairs is perhaps incongruous with the parliamentary concept and tradition. It's an idea the Americans developed. But in today's world it makes eminent good sense.

With the U.S. government reportedly flapping and floundering on the subject of disarmament proposals to make to Russia, the omens are less than wholly happy for the success of the 10-power talks next month.

Is the shadow of the next election to prejudice Canada's contribution to these talks?

There is still time, brother. But not much.

Washington Angle

Mix-Up Over Weapons

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NOTHING more extraordinary for confusion, uncertainty and a heavy air of mystery has occurred in the Eisenhower administration than the mix-up over sharing nuclear weapons with America's NATO allies. It was a fine example of marching up the hill, under a cloak of strictest secrecy, and then retreating in embarrassed disorder.

If President Eisenhower was aware of this sudden foray into a new area of policy and its objectives, he showed no sign of it. In fact, to the discomfiture of high officials in the Pentagon who had initiated it, whether knowingly or unknowingly, he signalled the retreat.

Insofar as it can be sorted out behind the screen of secrecy, here is what happened:

A top-secret paper was submitted to the joint committee on atomic energy with the sanction of high officials in the defence department and the Atomic Energy Commission. It proposed that the United States share the custody of nuclear weapons with the British. This was in relation to the intermediate-range ballistic missile bases and also for an airborne alert.

The contention was that only in this way could the greatest speed and efficiency be achieved in the event of need for a retaliatory strike. Under the law as currently interpreted, a United States agent must keep custody of nuclear weapons at overseas bases.

Committee members were startled at the proposal itself, since its implications were so far reaching. But what was more startling was the view that the president had the authority to do this under his "inherent powers" despite the law.

The whole question of the sharing of nuclear weapons and nuclear information was thoroughly threshed out when the basic atomic energy law was amended in 1958. At the request of the administration closer co-operation with America's allies was approved. But on the insistence of committee members fearful that the "nuclear club" would be expanded, the provision that weapons must be retained in American custody was kept in the law.

Questioning of administration witnesses following the unveiling of the secret proposal seemed to confirm one of the deepest doubts of committee members. If nuclear weapons could be put in the hands of the British, they could hardly be withheld from other allies.

Having furnished Britain with a squadron of Thor intermediate-range missiles, manned by the Royal Air Force, the United States is in process of installing similar missile squadrons in Turkey and Italy.

The deepest misgivings were, however, with respect to West Germany. Several committee members feel that to give custody of nuclear weapons to the Germans would be an irrevocable act with wide repercussions as to doom attempts at disarmament. These same members are concerned over the way in which custody of nuclear weapons in Germany has been so interpreted as to violate the spirit, if not the letter, of the law.

Shortly after a hint of what had been proposed to the joint committee appeared, President Eisenhower was asked about sharing atomic weapons with allies. To the chagrin of those who had carefully thought out and worked up the "inherent powers" theory, the President replied:

"As far as giving away bombs, this cannot be done under existing law."

Since then it has been made clear that the administration will not ask for a change in the law, realizing it would precipitate a long controversy. But joint committee members are not sure that this really ends the effort to give weapons to the British.

The law requires that custody of atomic weapons be vested in a civilian, and a representative of the Atomic Energy Commission is designated by the president. But since the president also has the power to turn weapons over to the defence department, it has been determined that the captain of an American ship or submarine can be the AEC representative by White House order. He thus has the dual role of commander and presidential guardian under law.

Why, it is being asked, could not a Royal Air Force flight-lieutenant be given the same designation? This would make it possible to keep British fighter bombers in the air on a ready alert as a supplement to the ballistic missile deterrent.

If that should be done under the "inherent powers" of the presidency, it would be with the tightest secrecy restrictions. The joint committee would not be informed and presumably America's other allies would have no knowledge of this step. They would not be in a position therefore, to claim the same privilege.

But nothing could illustrate more dramatically how decisions taken in total secrecy enlarge the area of nuclear-weapons control. And at the same time, the risk of accidental war is inevitably increased.

Art of Inattention

By GREGORY CLARK

TO me, one of the weird things about New York is the way the train bearing you into it, in the morning, passes through station after station in the far-flung suburbs, where the throngs of commuters wait for their local train to follow yours; and not a soul of all those hundreds, lined up 15 feet away, so much as raises an eye to watch your train flash by.

Not one. There they stand, people of all ages and styles, denizens of one of the greatest cities on earth, who have mastered completely the art of inattention. Few of them appear to be with companions or even acquaintances. By the thousand they are alone. Their eyes are downcast. Or averted in an expression of indifference so complete that it is vaguely frightening. You peer from your Pullman window for the first glimpse of the great city into which your thundering train is rushing you. Your eyes are full of expectancy. But every three or four minutes you skip past another platform where the unresponsive Robots stare as if there were no train racing by. It is as if there were no sound. It is as if you were on a ghost train.

Perhaps it is only in small towns that people on platforms watch with interest the passing of trains. Maybe some of them come just to see the trains go by. It is a kind of pity that when a city grows big and full and loud with tumult, there is really nothing much to look at any more.

Value of Thetis

Some of the aldermen hold the view that Thetis Lake Park is "valuable," which means that they regard it as a source of potential revenue.

It is valuable. A park of this nature so close to Victoria is one of our greatest tourist attractions, and certainly the provincial parks department can handle it to much better advantage than the city.

It is impossible to believe that the city council regard those magnificent Douglas firs as so many board feet, or would consider selling part of it for a trailer camp or for motels.

Final Insult

What a "Gem" Mr. Mortimore has produced in his column "All Aboard" this morning (Feb. 15) and how very much most of us will undoubtedly agree with him. Surely we are all being parried and hurried, rushed and pushed, worried and hurried into our graves fast enough these days without the final insult of making sure our early demise shall be all these "cemetery salesmen" could wish. Apart from being in my opinion (one thing that is still my own, thank goodness) in the utmost bad taste, it seeks to take away about the only thing we can be sure of not having to worry about.

It only remains for someone to commit the ultimate sacrilege by producing a foolproof system of contacting the unborn infant so that his birth shall be a model event—neatly tied up, delivered—and paid for.

Then they will have got their talons into all of us.

Followers of the Flag

There are many Canadians whose families originated at the time of the American Revolution and these men and women fill prominent positions in the life of the country. I have met clergy, doctors, dentists, nurses, school teachers, university professors, farmers and others all leading useful lives; even a governor-general found a wife from one family.

The first comers sacrificed their wealth and position to follow the flag as they had gratitude to Queen Anne who in several cases helped them from England where they had taken refuge from religious persecution, and in loyalty to the rulers of England who had been of German origin.

They came to Canada in most cases almost destitute and in the end they became the backbone or cornerstone of the country. I cannot understand that any of these old families would wish to change the flag to eliminate the connection with England. They over the years have given service in our wars and some gave up their lives.

B. VANSITTART DUNKLEY.

Salute the Dollar

In the Salute of Feb. 23 the topic of the new B.C. flag crops up once more. This time it's a "flag with a chimney" on it. Some folk do not take too kindly to this design or symbol.

There are roughly 800,000 Canadians who would at present welcome such a sight as factory buildings, chimneys, etc., namely, the unemployed. Whoever is entrusted with the design of a new flag is bound to find disfavor from some quarter, so why not incorporate in the flag something similar to a dollar bill? Then perhaps they will salute with both hands.

Attorney's Story:

Shocked Carole Forgot 'Death Kit'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Carole Tregoff simply forgot carrying to the Finch home an attaché case which the state charges was a "do-it-yourself" murder kit," her attorney said Friday at the Finch-Tregoff trial.

Robert Neeb told the jury that 23-year-old Carole brought the case up the driveway to Dr. Bernard Finch, 42, without any knowledge of its contents or any intent to harm Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch.

NO IMPORTANCE
Neeb said she didn't attach any importance to the kit—with narcotics, knife, hypodermic syringes and hammer—and thus didn't remember it when she first talked to police about the July 18, 1959, slaying.

Neeb was the first of Miss Tregoff's three attorneys summing up the defense for the doctor's red-hairer mistress.

HOW MANY?
"How many of us have forgotten things and only when we see some object do we remember?" Neeb asked. "Since this trial started, I was involved in a head-on automobile collision," he continued. "I can't remember all the things that happened. But as I have sat here in this courtroom, little flicks of what occurred have come back to me."

EMOTIONAL SHOCK
"Now the mind is more affected by an emotional shock than by some kind of accident. The state is trying to make something evil of the fact that this young lady doesn't remember in detail what happened in Las Vegas and West Covina."

Neeb said Carole put none of the objects in the attaché case and she didn't know what was in it.

TOOTHACHE BETTER
The trial was recessed Thursday, because juror Eddie Lindsey had a toothache, but he was treated by a dentist and was able to take his place in the jury box.

The postponement set back the expected date for turning the case over to the jury to

Obituaries

W. Bird Dies At Home

William George Bird, 84, long-time purchasing agent for Yarrows Ltd., died Wednesday at his home, 566 Gorge Road West.

He retired on Oct. 1, 1949, after 33 years as Yarrows' purchasing agent.

He was known across Canada as one of the hardest-working and fairest-dealing men in his profession.

BORN IN BRISTOL

Born in Bristol, England, he began his career working for the firm that built the Manchester Ship Canal.

He worked for several of Britain's leading contracting firms. In 1909 he went to South America to serve as paymaster for Sir John Jackson (Chile) Ltd., a firm which was building one of the highest railways in the world.

He moved up and down the route by horse and mule at altitudes ranging from 5,000 to 12,500 feet, carrying the workers their pay.

JOINED YARROWS

He came to Victoria when the Canadian branch of Sir John Jackson Ltd. was building Ogden Point breakwater. After the breakwater was built, he joined the staff of Yarrows, in 1916.

Active in sports, Mr. Bird was provincial secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

He is survived by his widow Florence; and by a son, Charles Bird, captain of a CPR coastal vessel; and two daughters Mrs. Hilda Davies, and Mrs. Neil Stritar, all of Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Monday from Haywards.

Protestants Ask Apology Over 'Rec Link' Charge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Six U.S. Protestant leaders Friday demanded public government repudiation and apologies for charges linking the National Council of Churches with Communism.

The churchmen sent telegrams to Rep. Francis Walter, chairman of the House un-American activities committee, and Dudley Sharp, secretary of the air force.

MANUAL CHARGES

They demanded that Walter apologize to the council and the 60,000,000 Protestants it represents for his "untrue statement" supporting charges of Communist influence made in an air force manual.

They asked that Sharp repudiate the "false and slanderous" charges made in the manual and forbid reissuance in any form.

Walter said the telegram bore out his forecast that a committee hearing on the manual would be "falsely" labelled as an attack on religion. Without apologizing, he offered the Protestants a chance to testify.

The manual, designed to alert air force reservists against espionage and sabotage, was withdrawn after the church group protested a section linking some persons connected with the council to "pro-Communist fronts."

The manual now is being revised to eliminate any reference to specific organizations or individuals. However, the air force still is using another security manual containing similar charges.

The council was particularly aroused by Sharp's testimony before Walter's committee that he was uncertain whether the charges in the manual were true or false.

Dog-gondest Welcome

Holiday in Mexico 'Quite an Experience'

By JIM TANG

"You'd have to listen to me every night for a month to find out all the things that we did on that trip."

Two hours later, however, Bill Aldridge had made quite a dent in the stored-up memories of the Mexican trip he had just completed.

Winner of the top prize in the 1959 Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest, Bill arrived home late Thursday evening with his wife, Gwen, after a guided Canadian Pacific Airlines tour of Mexico.

It took them to Mexico City, to Cuernavaca, Taxco and to Acapulco, where the Aldridges had a five-day stay at the famed El Presidente Hotel.

"It was quite an experience, a real education," Mrs. Aldridge said.

The Aldridges, who won the trip when a 2½-pound trout Bill caught in Cowichan Lake on June 7 proved to be the winning fish among the 23,222 entries made in last year's King Fisherman Contest, managed to squeeze in only one fishing trip in their cramped schedule.

But the Aldridge luck still held. Bill hooked and outlasted a 100-pound sailfin in a 35-minute tug-of-war which left the winner a perspiration-drenched and all but beaten warrior.

'That Was Work'

"That was work," he recalled, visibly slumping at the memory. "My, but that was work. I pumped and I reeled in that chair for an hour and when that thing made his first jump he was two miles away. Half an hour later I knew I had him beat because I had picked up at least a yard of line."

Bill's time was corrected by Mrs. Aldridge but he left no doubt but that he had had an epic struggle.

And then there was yet another argument to win even after the exhausted fish had been brought to the side of the boat. The skipper of the charter boat wanted badly to bring it in as proof of his guiding prowess and it was some time before he yielded to Bill's wish that it be set free.

"That guy never did speak to me again, not even to say good-bye when we got in," Bill related.

Second Fish

It was the second sailfin of the day for the boat the Aldridges shared with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harkness of Haney. Harkness got his first, a 90-pounder which was brought in for display and the picture-taking ritual.

Cost of the charter boat, a clean and modern 28-footer, with a crew of three, for the two couples was $30 for a fishing day which started at 8:30 a.m. and ended at 3:30 p.m. Fishing started after about a 20-mile run from shore, moved out another 10 miles when no sailfin were sighted in the first area.

Successful lure was half a barracuda, which had been boned and then stitched up after a "huge" hook had been placed. The bait is "skipped" along the top with the boat travelling at a speed of "at least 15 knots."

"You can imagine the jolt there is when a big sailfin hits a lure trolled at that speed," Bill said. But his most vivid memories of the trip are of the ground swells — "they must have been 30 feet high — and the heat — "Man, it was hot."

Too Heavy

"Sure, I'd like to go back and try that fishing again," Bill said in answer to a question. "But if I did, I'd take my own tackle. That stuff those charter boats have — thick glass rods, great big reels and line at least 100-pounds breaking strength — is too heavy. On a lighter rod and 40-pound line you sure could have some fun if you didn't melt away."

However, the fishing trip

Canucks Trip Cougars; Return Game Tonight

Victoria Cougars will no doubt be happy to return to Memorial Arena tonight following a seven-game Western Hockey League road trip that ended on an unhappy note Friday at Vancouver.

Cougars appeared at Vancouver last night after just completing their final Prairie trip of the season with a respectable three won, three lost, record.

However, the exhausting trip had its effects as Cougars fell 6-1 to the league-leading, and fresh, Canucks after battling on even terms for two periods.

Canucks return the visit tonight and chances are colorful Tony Leswick, former NHL star, will be in a Canucks' uniform.

Leswick, former playing-coach of Edmonton Flyers, has been given permission by the Prairie team to finish the WHL season with Vancouver.

Presently living just outside the New Westminster limits, Leswick remains Edmonton property. His presence in the Vancouver lineup is sure to add more power to the talented Canucks.

General manager Bud Pollt of Flyers gave the go-ahead sign to Vancouver and Leswick prior to a game at Edmonton, Winnipeg downed Edmonton 7-4.

Cougars gave Vancouver quite a battle until the final period Friday.

Holding Canucks to scoreless first period, Cougars fell behind 2-0 midway through the second but were back in the game at 17:10 when Arlo Goodwin finished off a fine play with George Ford.

Vancouver goalie Hank Basen moved out of his net to cover Ford who had the puck. Ford quickly passed to Goodwin at the side of the net and then bodychecked Basen out of the play. Goodwin had a bad angle to shoot at but still collected his 14th goal of the season.

Canucks moved ahead 3-1 in the final minute of the period and salted away their 37th win with three goals early in the third period.

Defenceman Sandy Hucul led Vancouver with two goals.

Stan Tied For Second

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Bobby Hull and Joe Jimenez tied for the lead Friday after the second round of the 72-hole Puerto Rico open golf tournament. Both fired three-under-par 68s for a 36-hole total of 138.

Just a stroke behind are Stan Leonard of Vancouver and the first-round leader, Manuel de la Torre of Milwaukee. Leonard matched de la Torre's first-round, recording 67 Friday.

Shoe's Spill Not Serious

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — National champion jockey Willie Shoemaker was kicked in the head and cut in a fall from a horse at Santa Anita Park Friday but apparently escaped severe injury.

Whether the 28-year-old rider will be able to ride the favored Bagdad in the $145,000 Santa Anita handicap today remained uncertain.

Totems, Oak Bay Win Easily

Top-seeded teams ran true to form Friday night at Central Junior High gym as the Lower-Upper Vancouver Island high school zone basketball tournament opened with four one-sided games.

Victoria High Totems and Oak Bay were the Victoria entries that advanced as expected to today's semi-finals and finals. Totems outran Campbell River 55-44 while Oak Bay shelled Tsolum 64-46.

Also reaching the second round of the winning teams brackets were highly-rated Courtenay Towhees and Alberni District Chieftains.

Five teams will advance to the Vancouver Island tournament next weekend at Nanaimo. Victoria High, Courtenay, Oak Bay and Alberni have all been assured of positions in the Vancouver Island final.

Courtenay, playing without two first-string forwards, while Orland Kurtenbach, Danny Belisle, Ralph Keller and Gordon Vejprava scored once each.

The win moved Vancouver 12 points ahead of second-place Edmonton.

Flyers trailed 3-0 after 10 minutes of the game at Edmonton and never threatened. Steve Witluk led Winnipeg with two goals.

New Bowladrome?

By JIM TAYLOR

A new, fully-automatic bowling house for both five-pins and tenpins will be in operation in Victoria for the 1960-61 season.

First announcement of the long-rumored, new house came via newspaper advertisements which say applications are already being accepted for next season. Everything is given except the location, and that is reported to be in a Douglas Street shopping centre presently under construction.

The house will have 40 lanes — 20 for tenpins, 20 for fivepins — with an automatic pinsetter on each lane. Official opening date for the Victoria Deluxe Bowladrome is set for Aug. 15, and the layout will include a coffee bar and free parking facilities.

Announcement of the new house brings up some interesting possibilities. First of all, it could bring a race to see who gets a new establishment up first. Johnny Achtem of Gibson's Bowladrome has long been considering a new house, strictly for tenpinners. He has the property (on Herald Street), and the possibility of some unexpected competition could be the spur he needs to get started.

Then, again, there is the bowling lanes supposedly planned for a shopping centre on Hillside Avenue.

From a city clamoring for automatic setters, Victoria has suddenly shown signs of becoming one where bowling has reached saturation point so far as facilities are concerned.

Certainly, even one more house is going to mean a dog fight for the leagues next season. With automatic pinsetters at Gibson's, Esquimalt Bowladrome and the new house, there is liable to be some shifting of leagues presently operating where there will be no automatics.

Other high tenpinners at Gibson's were Wilbur Webb, 623 (220, 235); Roy Bridger, 605; Gladys Cornthwaite, 573 (213); Sheldon Nipp, 570; Gordie Ramford, 569; Iain McKeachie, 568; Ron Wilson, 565; Bill Coates, 567 (202); Len Murrant, 548 (206); Doug Elford, 583 (204, 200); Ed Simmons, 583 (206, 202); Jim Mills, 546; Richard Lou, 542 (224); Con McBeth, 569 (244); and John Schapansky, 549.

Lloyd Chow was high man at Strathcona with 604 (222), followed by Ron Wilson, 590 (222, 212); Bill Keachie, 573 (202); Tom McKeachie, 573; Bud Falk, 568; J. Brown, 564 (208); Sheldon Nipp, 559; and Charlie Skinner, 553 (202).

Bill Cool piled up a 909 total to show the way for fivepin bowlers at Capital City Bowladrome.

Canadian Skier Toast of Olympics

Anne Heggtveit, left, gets affectionate hug from Betsy Snite after Canadian and American girls, respectively, finished one-two in women's slalom ski race at Winter Olympics at Squaw

Russian Win Today Vital

Hockey Showdown on TV; CBC Gets Sunday Game

Last two vital games in the Olympic hockey tournament will be available to television viewers today and Sunday.

Columbia Broadcasting System, as announced previously, will carry today's U.S. vs. Russia game over channels 7 and 12, beginning at 2 p.m.

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation yesterday announced that it had cleared the way for Canadian viewers to see Sunday's Canada vs. Russia match over channels 2 and 6 at 1 p.m.

Victory for Russia today over the U.S. would put Canada squarely on the spot for the Sunday game with Russia. The Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who lost 2-1 to the U.S.

Thursday, must defeat Sweden today to be eligible for the showdown Sunday.

U.S. plays Czechoslovakia in its win/loss game Sunday.

Here's how the teams stack up going into today's games:

Team	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
U.S.	3	0	0	17	5	6
Russia	2	0	1	17	8	5
Canada	2	1	0	17	2	4

You can see that there are lots of "ifs" and "buts." If Russia defeats U.S. today and Canada were to defeat Sweden, then defeat Russia Sunday, Canada might have a good chance on its superior goals average.

Sunday's Canadian telecast will be carried on CBS' stand-by circuit. It could be subject to interruption should the regular CBS circuit break down and the American network reclaim its standby circuit.

The deal was completed after a week of negotiating among the networks, the International Ice Hockey Federation and the Olympic Committee.

The game also will be broadcast over CBC radio.

The Dutchmen are Canada's last remaining real hope for an Olympic medal. The Servold brothers from Camrose, Alberta, entered in today's 50-kilometre cross-country ski race and Jacques Charland of Trois-Rivières, Que., a candidate in the 80-metre ski jump Sunday, are long-shot possibilities.

Anne Heggtveit Wins Slalom

Canada Cheers Ski Victory

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP)—Canada's Olympic team, still smarting from the 2-1 hockey defeat inflicted by the United States Thursday night, cheered till the Squaw Valley peaks echoed Friday after Anne Heggtveit's sweeping ski victory brought her the 1960 Olympic downhill gold medal and the world combined title.

Her win also gave her the world slalom title.

It was the first Olympic ski gold medal ever won by a Canadian, and Canada's second of these 1960 games. And it marked the first time Canada had made an unofficial international points score at the eighth Winter Games since Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner of Toronto won the pairs figure-skating title a week ago and Maria and Otto Jelinek of Oakville, Ont., placed fourth.

Miss Heggtveit's comeback victory after placing 12th in the earlier downhill and giant slalom races was followed in mid-afternoon by Don Jackson's magnificent try in the men's figure-skating final that won him third place and the bronze medal.

The Oshawa skater, who placed second to David Jenkins of the United States in the 1959 world championships, did his best to beat the American medical student in the free-skating windup to three days of competition. But Jenkins' earlier placing in the compulsory school figures gave him the edge over the Canadian North American champion going into the finals.

UNANIMOUS

Jenkins copped the gold medal after an unanimous decision by the judges. Kerel Divin of Czechoslovakia, who led at the end of the compulsory figures competition, won the silver medal for second place.

Another Canadian made the top 10 in this event with junior champion Donald McPherson of Stratford, Ont., taking that spot to match the placing of Sandra Tewkesbury of Chatham, Ont., in the women's figures.

The day also was marked by a formal protest by Russia in the 15-kilometre women's cross-country ski race after Sweden apparently had won the 9.3-mile event in which only northern European teams competed.

The Russians claimed that Finland's Sili Rantanen had interfered with Soviet skier Radia Eroshina, who fell and broke a ski in the first lap of the three-stage relay, allowing the Swedes to triumph over the favored Russian team.

DELAYED DECISION

The judges decided to hold up decision on the event until they could study moving pictures of the incident. These will not be available until today.

The Russians were consoled, however, when their ace speed skater, Eugen Grishin, became a double gold medalist when he finished in a tie with Roald Aas of Norway in the 1,500-metre men's event. Both had times of two minutes, 10.4 seconds and both won gold medals.

Grishin earlier won the 500-metre race and his second victory gave the Soviet Union a total of seven gold medals for the games, six of them in speed skating.

Three Canadian skiers were well down in the field of 48 in the 1,500 metres. Ralph Olin of Edmonton made the best showing with 36th place in a time of 2:23.5. Johnny Sands of Montreal was 43rd in 2:28.4 and Larry Mason of Calgary 45th in 2:35.3. They get their last chance today in the 10,000-metre race, longest of the skating program.

SERVOLDS AGAIN

Clarence and Irvin Servold of Camrose, Alta., also will go back into competition Saturday, in the 50-kilometre cross-country men's ski race. Clarence placed second in a 15-kilometre cross-country but did not win a medal because the competition was half of the combined Nordic event.

It was all Heggtveit around the Canadian quarters Friday night after the Ottawa ski queen had made flashing runs of 54 and 55.6 seconds to win the slalom in the total time of one minute, 49.6 seconds. The second best time went to Betsy Snite of the U.S., in 1:52.9 and

Squab Valley

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—One of the best-laid plans for the Winter Olympics has gone awry.

Two thousand homing pigeons released at the opening-day ceremony didn't all go home. Some are still here enjoying the games and doing the things that pigeons do.

At least one California resident is worrying about the birds. Frederick Barron of Santa Barbara telegraphed $10 to start a pigeon-feeding fund.

West Coast Hospital Seeks Certification

All Dressed Up for Brier

B.C.'s entry in the Macdonald Brier curling championships will be easily identified from a long way off, because the team will be wearing Indian sweaters such as this one modelled by Glen Harper, skip of the Duncan team. Money for sweaters was donated by the Chamber of Commerce, Duncan and North Cowichan councils. (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Little Brier, Too? Duncan Hopeful

DUNCAN—Will Duncan represent all of B.C. in the "Little Brier" as well as the "real thing?"

A four-man team, which thinks there is a definite possibility, jumped into the Canadian Legion's B.C. finals at Penticton yesterday.

They are Pete Prest, Bert Evans, Dave Stott and John Burdick, all veterans and members of the Legion here.

If they win the team will compete in the Canadian Little Brier sponsored by Canada's Legions in the East later this year.

Changes Plea in Car Thefts

Other Day I Wasn't Guilty, Today I Am, Says Laborer

DUNCAN—An Italian-Canadian laborer was sentenced yesterday to 12 months concurrent in Oakalla on each of three charges of car theft.

Paul Stolfi, 32, no fixed address, changed his pleas from not guilty.

Two of the three car-owners were charged and fined during the court sitting for leaving their cars with the keys in the ignition.

When asked if he had been drinking Tuesday when the cars were taken, Stolfi replied: "It is hard to say." When questioned about changing his plea, he said, "That day I was different and I was not guilty. Today I am guilty."

One of the cars was abandoned by Stolfi when it ran out of gas 11 miles from Duncan on Cowichan Lake Road. Second car he drove to Chemainus, 12 miles away, and abandoned it when it struck a pole. He drove the third car to Nanaimo and back without mishap.

The police record, said of officers in court, showed Stolfi had five convictions against him, ranging from careless driving to driving without a licence. Stolfi, a naturalized Canadian, has been in the country nine years.

Fined $10 each were Pierre Bion, Victoria, and James E. Moore, Duncan, who pleaded guilty to charges of leaving their cars parked with keys in the ignitions.

'Didn't Connect Siren, Police'

DUNCAN—A motorist in busy pre-Christmas traffic who didn't pull off the road when he heard a siren was fined $20 in court yesterday.

Guy J. F. Dobell, Tzouhalem Road, was told: "A police car in duty has the right-of-way ahead of any other cars." Magistrate A. C. Sutton also said after the trial, "You are charged with failing to give the right-of-way to a police vehicle. The fact that you did not stop when you heard the siren put you in the wrong."

Dobell's car was struck by one driven by RCMP Const. James Wilson Dec. 24 at Government and Indian Roads. More than $300 damage was done to them. The police car, on the way to an accident, had its red light and siren on.

Dobell said that he believes he was prudent in looking both ways for other traffic, but added he didn't connect the siren with a police car.

Chip Truck Driver Trial Set

DUNCAN—Chip truck driver John Munson pleaded not guilty to a charge of careless driving when he appeared in court yesterday.

He was charged after he drove his truck into a dirt bank west of Duncan to avoid a collision with a train. Trial was set for March 2.

In other cases, Clarke Rainforth of Chemainus was fined $10 for driving a truck on Cedar Street, near Ladysmith last Feb. 11, without a canvas cover on a load of sawdust.

For not having a load of wood secured to his truck, Tarlok Singh of Cowichan Lake was fined $10.

Ernest Gibson, 19, Somenos Road, was fined $20 for speeding last Saturday on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Directors Re-elected

PORT ALBERNI—Six directors were re-elected unanimously at the 48th annual meeting of West Coast General Hospital Society this week.

Re-elected were John Ham-margren, IWA representative; James G. Trebett, carpenters' union; E. F. Duncan, Port Alberni Chamber of Commerce; W. J. C. Jones, Kinsmen Club; Arthur T. Turner, Port Alberni Legion, and William A. Ginnever, Alberni Legion. They were unopposed.

Notices of reappointment of M. E. B. McVicar, provincial government representative; Norman Odgers, Port Alberni city representative, and Ald. T. S. Barnett of Alberni to the board of directors were received.

Mr. Odgers said that the survey should be carried out this spring. He spoke of accreditation as giving assurance that the patients are receiving medical care of high standard, that the proper facilities are available to treat patients, that physical aspects of the hospital are adequate and well-maintained.

NO CROWDING

The president said that no action is contemplated at this time toward completing the unfinished top floor of the hospital. "On numerous occasions during the year the surgical and pediatric departments were crowded but not for sufficient length of time to warrant a start on expanding our facilities," he said.

Later in the meeting hospital administrator Harvey E. Taylor expressed the hope of seeing two-thirds of the top floor devoted to pediatric facilities in the future.

NO AID

However, he said, he believed that present facilities would have to be overburdened for considerable length of time before the government would approve the project. He also pointed out that operating expenses would be high in proportion to the capital expenditure for providing the additional facilities.

LOWER FIGURES

In a statistical report presented by Mr. Taylor it was shown that admissions, patient days and occupancy rates all were down from the previous year. Minor operations and X-ray services showed an increase.

Goal of B.C. Firm, Vertol:

Tailor-Made Logging 'Copter

Development Expected To Take Two Years

J. D. Storie, president of Pacific Helicopters Ltd. of Vancouver, said this week his company has been working with Vertol Aircraft Company Ltd. for several months in an effort to develop a helicopter suitable for Pacific Coast logging.

He said the machines will require special type of equipment for logging.

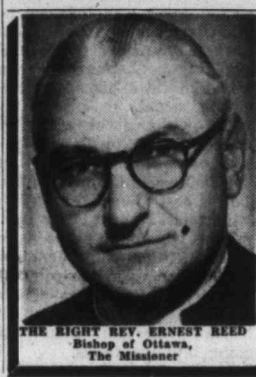

It may be 1961, or even 1962 before the right type of machine is developed, he said.

The new helicopter logger would be different from the Vertol 107 or the new, more powerful machine with a maximum lifting capacity of between 12,000 to 14,000 pounds which is now being developed by Vertol.

Joe Garner, former Duncan logging operator now living in Victoria, is a director of Pacific Helicopters, which has nine Bell helicopters and two Hiller 12-E 'copters.

NEW PROCEDURE

Starting in 1961, Norway's state budget will run concurrently with the calendar year, instead of starting on July 1.

Hudson Block Fate Uncertain

DUNCAN—Fate of the Hudson Block, severely damaged in a $100,000 fire on Valentine's Day, hung in the balance last night.

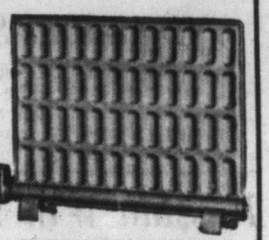

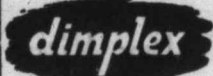

Owner Walter Hudson said he had not decided whether or not he will build using part of the existing structure, or build an entirely new block.

He said damage is set at $29,725—or 46.4 per cent of the replacement cost.

According to a city bylaw, no building can be rebuilt if damage is more than 40 per cent of the replacement cost. He can appeal to the city council, and take it to county court if he doesn't like the city's decision.

Garden Notes

Tonic Time for Soil

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Quite a few of our perennial plants appreciate a top dressing of fresh, rich soil over their roots, and providing your ground has dried out sufficiently to be worked, there is no reason why this work should not be done now in order to save time later on.

A dressing of leafmould, or even half-rotted leaves from the pile you raked up last fall, is a wonderful tonic for a bed of lily-of-the-valley, and even more so if you can afford to mix a little well-rotted manure with it. Make sure that weeds, fallen leaves and other rubbish are cleared away beforehand.

Strawberry plants seem to have a habit of working themselves up out of the soil, and these, too, can do with a few barrow loads of good soil spread between the rows. This is much better than pulling soil up around the plants with a hoe, for strawberries are shallow rooters, and it is almost impossible to use the draw hoe between the plants without doing considerable damage.

In the rock garden, soil tends to be washed away from the upper levels to the lower pockets, and here too is another place where top dressing will almost certainly be needed. I make up a bucketful of equal parts soil, peat, and coarse, gritty sand to tuck under the lower leaves of my rock garden plants.

The red shoots of peonies are pushing through the soil surface in many gardens, and this is the time when the plants are most vulnerable to infection from the spores of botrytis disease. Infected plants show no symptoms at all until after the flower buds appear, when the buds either dry up and fall off or decay into a mushy brown rot. Along with too deep planting, botrytis is the most common cause of failure to bloom in peonies.

The proper drill here is, first, to houseclean the peony bed, making sure no fallen leaves, old peony foliage, twigs or other rubbish remains on the surface, for this organic litter provides the winter home for the disease spores.

If the old foliage was not cleared away last fall, cut it down now, scraping some soil away and making your cuts an inch below the soil surface. Examine the base of each stem as it is removed, and if you find any sooty-looking pustules at or just below the soil line, you'll have to take extra special precautions against botrytis.

From the moment the little red shoots put in an appearance, they should be kept sprayed or dusted with a good fungicide. Any all-purpose orchard spray will serve, or you can use rose dust, potato dust, Captain, or Later's Garden Fungicide. Renew the application after every rain right up to the time the flower buds start to open.

Earlier this week I described methods of sterilizing soil for seed-sowing by heat or with chemicals in order to avoid the dreaded damping-off disease of seedlings. I should have pointed out that there is one seed which has a profound distaste for sterilized soil—the snapdragon.

I haven't the foggiest idea as to why the antirrhinum should be allergic to sterilized soil, but certainly the germination of snapdragon seeds is much better and the seedlings more vigorous in soil that has not been treated. Snaps can damp off like any other seedling, though, and it is necessary to be especially careful in watering to avoid a cold, wet soil surface.

Plunging Into History

In these troubled television times, the industry is plunging most successfully, almost gratefully, into history.

Last week, two quite different types of shows unfolded on NBC—"Shadow of a President," which was a sort of dramatic essay on President U. S. Grant's hard times and declining years, and Project 20's "Not So Long Ago," which was an attempt to follow up its successful documentaries on the '20s and '30s.

John Whedon, who wrote the Grant play, used a remarkably flexible method of jumping from one time sequence to the other. His actors would simply move out of one picture frame of a set into another decade.

It kept the story moving lightly, gracefully, and it kept the emphasis on the proper place—the genius and shortcomings and peculiarly American personality of Grant.

In an age of conformity, it's inspiring to see some genuine individuals and the play was full of them—not only Grant, but Twain and Lee and Lincoln. The drama was directed with great simplicity and freshness by Jack Smight.

"Not So Long Ago" was the story of the nation—its good times and hard times and enthusiasms and despairs—in the period from 1945 when the Second World War ended to when the Korean War began.

It started very dramatically with a radio message: "Cease fire! Cease fire! The war is over!" (What did they do in war dramas before they invented the control tower, the greatest dramatic gadget since the telephone.)

From there the picture went into roughly 12 minutes of kissing and dancing in the streets, to celebrate the peace. Then peace descended in earnest like a gray cloud and from then on the story stretched in an undeviating line which is not, dramatically, a very good line.

The end of gas rationing, the separation centres, the war brides; Churchill at Fulton, Mo.; launching the phrase "the Iron Curtain"; the Red hunt in Hollywood; Alger Hiss; the New Look; the Ingrid Bergman-Rossellini romance (and Rita and Aly); the Marshall Plan; Truman's re-election; the flying saucers; the first hydrogen bomb—it's not that these things are not interesting, they are terribly interesting in themselves but they are too unvarying, or too close to us, or too uniformly the same to have any coherent message.

A hundred years from now, what a great impact this same show will have. But then it will have a new narration, tying it to the distant past and to the present, with a wisdom we don't yet have.

The narrator, incidentally, was Bob Hope who was "very matter-of-fact about the chore and very good."

Hollywood Today

'Suzie' Sticks to Tonsillitis

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—It will be three months before France Nuyen will be able to work again. She is still sticking to "tonsillitis" as the reason for her withdrawal from the movie version of "The World of Suzie Wong."

Orson Welles is living in style in his six-bedroom home in London. Orson is usually hard up for cash, but manages to live like a prince.

Anna May Wong is playing Lana Turner's housekeeper in "Portrait in Black."

Ava Gardner is being plagued by a nuisance lawsuit from a London doll-maker who claims he sent her $200-worth of dolls—a hundred of them—two years ago. There's a rumor that Ava is returning to live in Hollywood. This I will believe when it happens.

Mme. Julie Gabor has nothing on Mme. Betty Meyers, whose daughter is glamorous Tina Louise. Tina is opening a costume jewelry store on New York's fashionable east side, and putting her mother—a la Jolie and her jewelry store—in charge.

Which reminds me: Zsa Zsa's fervent admirer, Sidney Barton, gave Zsa and daughter Francesca a slew of race-horses.

And: "Strange," mused the middle Gabor sister, "I always get engaged in February."

Angela Lansbury dropped nine pounds for her role in Warner's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs." Angela told how she did it: "discipline."

Anthony Steel is getting back some of his ambition—he lost it with his divorce from Anita Ekberg—and has signed to make a movie in Argentina. He is selling the house he and Anita shared here.

Gilbert Roland explains his youthful vigor in his 60s. "It comes from living a great deal in Mexico—and exercise." His TV spec, made in Mexico City with Janet Blair, Dolores Del Rio, and one of the great matadors, Carlos Aruza, will be televised March 27.

There's a lot of second generation in "College Confidential." Producer Al Zugsmith has signed Robert Montgomery Junior, William Wellman Junior, Harold Lloyd Junior, and Bob Crosby's daughter Kathy.

Harold Mirasch will shoot "The Children's Hour" in Europe with, he hopes, Audrey Hepburn and Ingrid Bergman as the two teachers, and Heather Sears as the youngster who wrecks their lives.

Apartheid Is the Key

By ALAN HUMPHREYS

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africa moved into what many here regard as the "sensational sixties" with the economic barometer set "fair" for a boom.

The year 1959 ended on an upbeat for the economy and the general feeling in the nation's business community is that if political stability can be maintained, the Union will develop further its role as the economic strongpoint of the African continent.

But many do not take political stability for granted. The nation's fundamental problem—the tangle of social and political pressures consequent upon the division of a 14,000,000 population between 3,000,000 white and 11,000,000 non-white—remains as sharp as ever.

Half a century after the Union was born out of the strife of the Boer War, merging British and Dutch provinces under the Act of Union signed just 50 years ago this year, and with the nation due to become a republic soon, relations between races remain the essential fact of political life here.

South African Stability Pivots on Race Policy

The National party, in power since 1948 and with its mandate newly strengthened through provincial election gains last October, sees the future in terms of a strict separation of the races within its policy of apartheid.

The logical culmination of this policy now is in progress—the separation of the African population into separate, self-administering territories known as "bantustans." The first "bantustans" were established last year and more are to come in the decade ahead.

Organized industry is strongly opposed to this plan. Moreover, the government's uncompromising application of apartheid has caused the appearance of a new political party. A group of a dozen or so members of the opposition United party last year created the Progressive party, leaning more closely to the idea of an integrated country.

An expelled Nationalist, Japie Basson, also is reported at work with a pressure group, supported by discontented Nationalists outside Parliament.

But whatever the uncertainties of the political outlook, the new decade is full of promise on the business front.

A "marking time" recession which curbed expansion during 1958 evaporated during 1959 and the year finished with some notable records shattered.

1—The nation's bankroll of gold and foreign currencies stood at $151,900,000, 35 per cent up on the year and more than double the lowest 1958 figure.

2—Gold production—still the Union's chief breadwinner—hit 20,000,000 ounces, topping $250,000,000 for the first time.

3—Diamond sales totalled $91,100,000, some 20 per cent better than the previous best—1957.

4—Non-African unemployment reached a peak last July at 28.72 after a rise, then turned down to finish the year around 25,000.

5—The favorable balance of trade for 1959 was $167,400,000, four times the 1958 figure.

In recent weeks leaders of government, industry and commerce have been of one voice in forecasting an economic leap forward. Booming industry in Europe and the United States is expected to increase demand for South African raw materials such as wool, hides, and such metals as platinum, manganese, uranium and copper.

This year is expected to yield a gold production record as more new mines come into production to replace the fast-dying workings which originally changed Johannesburg from a rough shanty-town into a great financial centre.

Carrothers, Burchill, Smeal Panelists

New U.S. Labor Laws Could Affect Canada

Affiliation Could Be A Factor

New labor legislation in the U.S. could affect internal administration of Canadian locals affiliated with international unions.

This opinion was given by Prof. A. W. B. Carrothers during a panel discussion held in Victoria last night on the topic "Labor and the Law."

NEW LABOR LAWS

He told the audience of about 100 that no Canadian legislation but Newfoundland has enacted legislation comparable to the new American labor laws.

It is too early yet to determine what its effect will be on the Canadian scene, said Mr. Carrothers.

INTERNAL AFFAIRS

"However, considering the extensiveness of international unionism in Canada," he said, "it would be surprising if this new American legislation didn't reach down into the administration of the internal affairs of Canadian locals."

The speaker said "many unions in B.C. are administered effectively and democratically without legislative control under their own constitutions. He added unions have traditionally fought outside interference in their own affairs."

FOREIGN POWER

Nevertheless this may happen, said Mr. Carrothers, not as the result of Canadian legislation, "but through a law of a friendly but foreign power."

His detailed analysis of labor laws in several Canadian provinces was followed by a discussion involving other members of the panel. Mr. Carrothers prefaced his talk with a remark that it had "no relation whatever to any of my unpublished works."

His reference was to the controversial Carrothers report on collective bargaining for B.C. civil servants which the government has refused to make public.

VERY HEART

Robert Smeal, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said restrictive labor legislation passed last year in this province "strikes at the very heart of the trade union movement."

He said the legislation is designed to weaken the trade union movement by blunting its only weapon—the right to strike.

"When a manufacturer refuses to sell his goods because he doesn't like the prices offered," said Mr. Smeal, "that's free enterprise."

THAT'S BAD

"But when a union member withholds his services for the same reason—that's bad."

Mr. Smeal strongly contended organized labor has not been guilty of irresponsible behavior. He said more Canadians have benefited from actions of the trades union movement than have suffered from it.

MANY BENEFITS

He went on to cite old-age pensions and the Workmen's Compensation Act as two of the many benefits which would not exist today "but for the efforts of the trade union movement."

The labor leader urged the government to provide better machinery for conciliation and return free collective bargaining to the unions and employers.

NOT TOO LONG

Prof. C. S. Burchill of Royal Roads, third member of the panel, predicted there will be further "restrictive labor legislation" but added the present anti-labor trend would not last "too long."

He said skillful publicity has built up in the public mind "myths of the big bad trade union" and the benign businessman.

Begonia Society Meets Wednesday

Victoria Begonia Society will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. with A. M. Hall as speaker.

Fine Plan, Says Graham

Flag Contest Idea Lauded by Artists

A suggestion that a province-wide artists' competition be held to find an acceptable design for a provincial flag met with enthusiastic approval from Victoria artists last night.

The controversial flag design suggested in the B.C. legislature recently left artists reached last night of the opinion that new designs should be found as soon as possible—before the bill comes before the legislature.

FINE IDEA

"It's a fine idea," said Colin Graham, curator of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. "It is the artist who should be called in to discuss the design of things like this. In fact, I think there should be a design commission set up for all matters such as the flag, things like celebrations decorations and government letterheads."

"It's been said that there are more good artists per square mile in B.C. than in the rest of the country. We ought to be able to get some fine designs out of it."

WHITE SHIELD

Roundly criticized both in and out of the legislature, the flag proposed in Bill 40 contains a white shield; the B.C. coat of arms; a blossoming dogwood; two fir trees; a range of mountains; a group of factory buildings complete with smokestacks, some houses, and wavy lines representing the ocean.

It has been called everything from "a collection of odds and ends" to "a wrapper for a firm packaging salmon." Criticism has been such that it is considered doubtful that the proposed bill will ever go through when it comes up for debate.

ONE GOOD DESIGN

However, artists were certain that at least one good design could be found if artists all over the province submitted their ideas.

Herbert Seibner called it "a fine idea."

"If the government is really interested in getting a provincial flag there should be an open competition with two or three prizes. It would be the wise thing to do, and there are good artists in the province. Vancouver School of Art, for instance, has some fine designers."

MORE SUITABLE

Richard Cicciaccia was of the opinion that if the contest was on a province-wide basis there would be several designs forthcoming more suitable than the one at present being considered.

"I've seen the proposed flag, and I understand the complaint is that there are too many details on it," he said. "A symbol should be something that is simple and easily recognizable. Such a contest would come up with one."

'Rather Startling' Water Increase

Esquimalt isn't happy with increased water rates approved by city council, but probably won't protest as a municipality. Reeve A. C. Wurtele indicated yesterday.

He described the 42 to 50 per cent increase, which will give the city a five per cent net profit on the Victoria-Esquimalt water system and cover also the recent increase in the wholesale rate, "rather startling."

"I had hoped they wouldn't put on a further increase, just the extra cost of water from the water board," he said. "A big increase makes people suspicious, as if the city were planning for a city hall or something of that sort. Perhaps I shouldn't say that, but it's a mistake to overdo it."

However, he said, so far Esquimalt council had said nothing about the proposed increase and "I feel that we are part of the Victoria-Esquimalt district and any protest should come from the whole area."

A household using an average amount of water in the past has paid about $3.64 every two months, city water commissioner J. C. Garnett said yesterday, and under the new schedule would pay $5.16 for the same amount.

"I had hoped they wouldn't put on a further increase, just the extra cost of water from the water board," he said.

"A big increase makes people suspicious, as if the city were planning for a city hall or something of that sort. Perhaps I shouldn't say that, but it's a mistake to overdo it."

PRINCESS MARGARET ... 'obviously happy'

He's No Playboy

Tony Introduced To the Palace By Duke of Kent

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—About two years ago, I began to see less of Tony Armstrong-Jones in the brighter spots around town—but it wasn't until yesterday that I found out why.

He had met Princess Margaret.

BEAUTIFUL MODELS

Tony is a short, fair-haired, pleasant young man. Before he met Princess Margaret, I used to see him in the company of beautiful models, some of whom he used as subjects for his pictures.

There was a tendency in the gilded younger set to regard Tony as somewhat of a playboy, but he stopped that with his very first pictures.

AS PROFESSIONAL

They were as professional as any turned out by more famous cameramen.

And they brought Tony to the attention of the Duke of Kent, then looking for someone to take his official 21st

Margaret, Commoner

Betrothal Astounds Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — An astounded Britain heard Friday that Princess Margaret will wed a commoner, London society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, whom she met at a party here two years ago.

The Queen Mother made the announcement without mentioning a wedding date.

Slim, blond Armstrong-Jones is the son of a twice-divorced lawyer and a countess. He is short, but slightly taller than Margaret; he will be 30 March 7, she will be 30 Aug. 21.

Upon the marriage, he is expected to get a title while her allowance from Parliament will rise to $40,050 from $16,020. Armstrong-Jones already has closed his photographic business and will move into the palace next week.

Trained by the late photographer, Baron, Armstrong-Jones became a big name in 1956 when the Duke of Kent liked his society portraits. He also designed dresses and sets for plays.

Armstrong-Jones is known to his friends as Tony, an elegantly-dressed man who likes "beer and jazz."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are delighted "because this is such an obviously happy match," the Queen's press secretary said.

Margaret's one-time suitor, Peter Townsend, also wed a photographer, Marie-Luce Jamagne, 20, two months ago.

Many Britons thought the princess would not marry after she renounced Townsend's hand in 1955 because he was divorced.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who led the fight against the Townsend match, says he was "very pleased" with the news.

Announcement followed by only a week the royal birth that moved Margaret to fourth from third in line to the throne.

Armstrong-Jones' thrice-married father, Ronald O. L. Armstrong-Jones, QC, wed air hostess Jennifer Unite, 31, two weeks ago; previous marriages to the present Countess of Rosse and Miss Carol Coombs ended in divorce.

Armstrong-Jones suffered polio as a child and one leg is still a bit weak but he does not limp. He was educated at Sandroyd school, Eton and Cambridge and was coxswain when the Cambridge rowing eight beat Oxford in 1950.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: The number of letters from women who admitted their husbands are clobbering them "in their sleep" was amazing to me.

The prize letter was from the wife who said it was okay because she knew her husband used to sleep with his brother Leonard who was rough and bigger than he was. The only way he could get even was to hit Leonard during the night. The kindly wife added,

"When my husband hits me I know he's dreaming of his childhood and he thinks he's with Leonard."

All I can say, Ann Landers, is if after 15 years he still thinks he's sleeping with his brother, she's got it coming.—STILL LAUGHING.

Rich Aunt's Bargains

Dear Ann—I'm still steaming about the Christmas gift I got from a very rich aunt.

The old biddy is in her 70s and has more money than the rest of the family put together. She brags to everyone how she does her Christmas shopping all through the year, so when Dec. 1 comes she has everything ready to go.

This is what she does. She watches the papers for sales, then she buys shopworn merchandise which is off-color damaged or out of style. She goes in for broken lots, smoke-damaged or fire sale stuff which anyone can see is junk.

I've received faded bath salts, hosiery with snags, watered-down cologne, a broken box of stationery and dried-out candy.

I would never buy this merchandise and I resent the implication that I'd even use it. Shall I tell her off once and for all—SMOKING HAT.

Dear Smoking Hat: Don't spoil the old girl's fun. This penny-pinching biddy has made a hobby of ferreting out "bargains." Her gifts are not an insult, they're a challenge to her ingenuity. When the junk arrives enjoy the joke privately then give it to the Goodwill Industries. They will be able to put it to good use.

Dear Ann Landers: Our Louisa is a fair student, hasn't many girl friends and is quite shy.

Five months ago she started to date a boy, 17. He seems to have taken over her life completely. Every afternoon he drives her home from school then they sit in her room and play records or do school work.

If we don't invite him to dinner he leaves about 6 and phones her as soon as he gets home. At 7 he's back again and they sit around or go for a ride.

I've told my wife Louisa sees too much of this kid but she says there's nothing wrong

Tips for Parents

Mother Attempts The Impossible

By HELEN R. HEWSON

Some families have a special problem. "We have tried to show no partiality toward our two girls," writes one mother. "They are 2½ and 3½ years old."

"We treat them equally as far as possible but the older one is becoming more and more insistent on 'equal rights.' Her bib must be tied, her meat cut, just like Ann's. "She demands medicine and temperature taken, too, when Ann is ill."

"The children play well together and with other children. The jealousy shows only in her relationship with me."

"Does she feel insecure?" "Patience and explanations have no effect, she is still most demanding."

"I am tired of trying to treat Joan exactly like Ann, tired of explaining, tired of her resistance. What can I do?"

No two children are alike. They have the same basic human needs which are met through their own growth and efforts, their parents' help, the interaction between child and environment.

Personality differences, different opportunities, create different responses, variations in the way the basic needs are met.

A good home and environment offer opportunities for a variety of personality patterns to emerge within the framework of routine care and free time play.

Joan is ready for more independence, more self-help than Ann. There will be other differences, too, such as vocabulary and play interests. Encourage her to find legitimate and satisfying ways of being different.

When you are taking Ann's temperature let Joan take her doll's temperature—a toothpick will do nicely. Find a hair ribbon to match her red overalls when Ann is wearing blue.

Once you relax and begin to treat each as an individual you will find many ways of helping each to grow her own best way.

Early April Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Maxwell, Mesachie Lake, B.C., announce the engagement of their only daughter, Shirley Anna, to Mr. Raymond Lay, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Lay, Youbou, B.C. The wedding will take place on Saturday, April 2, at 7:30 p.m., in St. Christopher's Church, Mesachie Lake. Miss Maxwell is a 1959 graduate of the Royal Jubilee School of Nursing.—(Chevron Studio.)

Kiwanians Preparing Big Sale

The regular meeting of the Kiwanians will be held at the home of Mrs. R. M. Williams, 721 Robleda Crescent at 8 p.m. on March 2. Plans which are now well under way, will be discussed for the Kiwanians' gigantic rummage sale to be held at Maynard's auction rooms at 7 p.m. on April 1. Following the business meeting, color slides will be shown by Mr. and Mrs. Austin Curtis.

What's Cooking?

Serve Peaches Around Meat

By LOUISE MOORE

I often bless the readers who take time out to write cheery, humorous letters and brighten the whole day up.

Question: Can you tell me how to make a good, speedy chili con carne in about 2 minutes flat?

Answer: No, but this one takes about 6 minutes longer. Simply chop up 1 medium-size onion and cook it about 5 minutes in 1 tbsp. bacon fat or other shortening, along with ½ clove garlic, minced, or use garlic powder and save time.

Add 1 lb. ground beef and cook until nicely browned.

Season with salt and pepper to taste and about 1 tbsp. chili powder or enough to give it zip and tang. I like to add a pinch of oregano too.

Add 1 can tomato soup and 1 of kidney beans and a dash tabasco. Heat thoroughly and just before serving sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese. Serve with a good green salad.

Question: What can I do with Canadian freestone peaches besides serving them as is?

Answer: Plenty. Wrap the drained peach halves in which a maraschino cherry has been added with a rich pie pastry and bake to a golden brown. Then serve with ice cream or a sauce.

Give a glamour look to a broiler dinner by broiling them along with the meats—sausage, chops, ham slice, steaks, etc. Add the peaches during the last five minutes of broiling the meats.

Fill the centres with a bit of brown sugar or honey and add a bit of spice if you like. Serve them around the meats with a spoonful of cranberry or red currant jelly in each peach half.

Serve canned peaches over tapioca, rice, Spanish cream and other molded desserts, and don't forget how good they are with ice cream, in cobblers, pies, jellies and plain salads with cottage cheese.

'Fashion Brown' New

Wonderful, colorful accessories for Spring or now crowding into the stores.

New selection of handbags, all selling for $5, are red, blue, beige, white, grey, black and navy and a variety of browns, including the season's newest color, an attractive misty shade called Fashion Brown.

These handbags are made of plastic, simulated leather, tapestry and a strong material, hopsacking. This attractive fabric is woven in different shades of brown.

There is an infinite variety of shapes and sizes. Many of them are roomy, with zippered sections. Some are the classic pouch type. Others have handles and outside pockets, and some have brass rings as trimming.

Nicely finished, made in Canada and America, these handbags are good value.

What could be gayer than matching shoes and bag in summery colors. Dainty little suede pouches with a clasp opening, come from England, in pretty shades of pink, blue, green and beige. At $3.95 they are reasonable enough to buy as an extra accessory, and are styled to match some of the new Spring shoes.

GUIDES, BROWNIES

At the annual mother and daughter banquet of the First Brentwood Guides and Brownies, the divisional commissioner, Mrs. J. McKeivitt, introduced Mrs. N. Beaumont, new president of the local association. A first class pin was presented to Nita Townsend.

Guides and Brownies conducted a ceremony of lighting a candle each and placing it on the large cake in honor of the birthdays of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell.

We have no need of sunshades here but some of the new umbrellas look just as gay and summery. Lovely floral ones blend different shades of the same color. There are red ones, blue ones and soft, sophisticated greys.

Polka dots are high fashion still. Definite white spots on black or brown umbrellas are smart.

Extending umbrellas in similar colors are due to arrive at this store any moment. So handy for tucking into one of those roomy handbags, they will be the same price as their longer counterparts, $4.95.

For sporty types there are bargains in badminton racquets at the present time. Steel shafted racquets, nylon strung and made in Pakistan are reduced from $4.95 to $2.95.

Commonwealth Study Urged on Monarchy

LONDON (Reuters)—A Canadian-born member of Parliament calls for a Commonwealth commission on the future of the monarchy.

"Perhaps, besides the Prince of Wales, the creation of a prince of the realm of Canada and grand seigneur de Quebec might be considered," says William Aitken. "There could be a Princess Royal of Australia and New Zealand."

Aitken, 55-year-old nephew of Lord Beaverbrook, suggests in an article in Time and Tide that the commission, representing all the Commonwealth, could cover public relations, royal tours and residences in addition to the future status of young princes and princesses.

Indian 'Chessman' Wins New Trial

SAN FRANCISCO—In a case similar to Caryl Chessman's, California Indian Rayma Tom Carmen faces retrial for murder after nine years on death row in San Quentin.

Carmen was released yesterday when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he was tried in state court rather than federal. But he was re-arrested at once for trial before a federal judge and jury, which can still demand the death penalty.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Young Michael Landon, star of TV's "Bonanza," takes a great interest in the way his pretty blonde wife, Dottie, does her hair and wears her clothes. Dottie has a standing hair appointment each Wednesday morning at John and Joseph's, favorite Hollywood hair salon of the star set. Whenever he isn't working, Michael goes with her. He is fascinated with high style hair-dos and flips through the fashion magazines until he finds one he likes for Dottie.

Mr. John has a stock answer: "Ah, that is exactly what I had planned for Mrs. Landon." Then as soon as Mike leaves, Mr. John sets Dottie's hair in her customary casual style.

When he comes home, she makes it a point to ask Mike if Mr. John did her hair the way he likes it.

"Well, not exactly," is her husband's usual reply. He asks her to put a pin in here and a pin in there, studies the effect and grins. "That's it." Then he forgets about it until next hair appointment time.

And Dottie goes on wearing her hair exactly the same way Mr. John has been doing it for years.

U.K. 'Salad Days' Finally Closes

LONDON (CP)—"Salad Days," the longest-running musical in the world, has its final west end curtain today.

The gentle song-and-dance show, which has endeared itself to maiden aunts, the middle-aged and schoolchildren, closes at the Vaudeville Theatre after 2,282 performances, leaving far behind long-running shows like Chu Chin Chow and The Boy Friend.

In New York, Oklahoma ran for 2,246 performances.

Salad Days, one of the great "sleepers" of the British theatre, opened with no great expectations 5½ years ago. Julian Slade, who wrote the music with Dorothy Reynolds, has written a new musical. Follow That Girl, opening at the Vaudeville March 17.

Pay-Television Starts In Toronto Suburb

TORONTO (UPI)—The world premiere of a pay-as-you-watch television was staged here last night.

About 2,000 families dropped $1 each into coin boxes at attached to their TV sets and then chose between two movies and a sports event, each uninterrupted by commercials, station breaks or other announcements.

The system was launched by Trans Canada Telemelec, a division of Canada's largest theatre chain, Famous Players,

Etobicoke township, in western Toronto, was selected for the debut because Telemelec officials found it was "the toughest district to sell any where."

Only 2,000 out of 40,000 set owners in Etobicoke were willing to pay $5 for installing a coin box on a TV set. But new units are being installed at a rate of about 300 a week.

Telemelec officials said that if the system proves successful, it will be expanded coast-to-coast.

WASHINGTON—House payola investigators are checking whether a "hidden commercial" was aired by Jack Paar last month, when he praised a lot he said he had bought in Florida.

Ike Clarifies U.S. Stand

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—President Eisenhower laid down a four-point United States policy for Latin America — based on full economic and social justice for all — before a joint session of the Argentine Congress yesterday.

Terrorist bombings a few hours earlier preceded his arrival on the second major stage of his two-week South American tour.

Eisenhower told Congress in a prepared speech the United States desires:

- Rapid economic progress for all American nations, with all the people reaping its "blessing."
- To help "in every sound way we can toward just aspirations of the nations, and to persuade them and others to join in the world-wide effort to help less developed nations progress in freedom."
- To stick strictly to "a policy of non-intervention and mutual respect" but at the same time "to applaud the triumph of free self-government everywhere in the world."
- To bring ever closer the realization of a world in which peace with freedom is guaranteed and in which the mighty productive power of man can work constructively for the betterment of all humankind."

Eisenhower, saddened by an air crash over Rio de Janeiro Thursday during his visit to Brazil, received a quiet airport welcome from crowds far outnumbered by the nearly 5,000 troops and police present.

Bombs had rocked the capital a few hours before his arrival.

Cheers, Bombs

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Eisenhower heard the cheers of hundreds of thousands of Argentines yesterday but ran into Peronista demonstrations that brought police tear gas into play at one point.

To start the day, five bombs exploded in Buenos Aires, injuring three people. Supporters of Peron are usually blamed for frequent bomb blasts linked with Argentina's constant political turmoil. A few pro-Peron demonstrations marred Eisenhower's parade through the city, but the worst came after the parade had ended.

Shortly before Eisenhower's car was due to pass an intersection near the Congress building one group of demonstrators raised a banner proclaiming: "Ike Peronista." Another group of people quickly shouted: "Ike is a democrat . . . Ike is no dictator."

Freshly-painted slogans appeared around the airport calling for the return of exiled former dictator Juan Peron. They said:

"We want Peron's return. Only he can save the country."

The tough austerity measures of President Arturo Frondizi have sparked widespread unrest in Argentina.

Alberta in Black, Budget Optimistic

EDMONTON (CP)—A surplus budget linked to an optimistic forecast about Alberta's oil industry and a buoyant economy was brought down Friday night in the legislature.

Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman estimated record expenditures of $328,628,133 and revenue of $328,639,820 for the fiscal year which starts April 1, leaving a surplus of $11,687. He said his Social Credit government anticipates continued high interest by the oil industry in provincial oil and natural gas fields and an economy expansive enough to produce more revenue from tax-sharing arrangements with the federal government and other sources.

No tax changes were announced and none forecast. "There are no new sources of revenue indicated, either by taxation or otherwise," the treasurer said.

The government is expected to end the current fiscal year with a surplus despite a forecast deficit of $48,000,000 last year when Mr. Hinman budgeted for an expenditure of $309,000,000.

Sale of Crown leases to the oil industry and higher returns from the federal government brightened the financial picture.

A typical hurricane can release in one second more energy than that of several atomic explosions.

Saskatchewan Plans Record Expenditures

REGINA, Sask. (UPI)—A delicately balanced $148,750,000 budget showing record expenditures and revenues was unveiled in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday by Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines.

It was the second consecutive record budget showing principal increases to education and agriculture. Major increases will also be appropriated for roads and public works and health and welfare.

School grants will be increased by $4,500,000 for a total of $28,500,000.

Three Years Sentence For Minister

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gordon Sears, 37, an ordained minister, was sentenced Friday to three years on a charge of having sexual relations with a 12-year-old girl.

Sears, father of three and leader of the Youth for Christ movement here, pleaded guilty last week.

Prosecutor Stewart McMoran said there was an indication the girl was pregnant.

Mystery Child Survived Crash

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI)—A dark-haired three-year-old boy lay on a hospital bed yesterday, the youngest of 23 persons to survive the crash of an Italian Airlines DC-7 plane with 52 persons aboard.

Twenty-seven persons were known dead and two still were missing.

No one knew who the three-year-old child was.

Rescue workers searched for two persons still missing in the widely-scattered wreckage of the plane which burst into flames when it thudded to earth shortly after refueling at the airport.

The crash brought the total dead in international plane crashes within 24 hours to 88. A collision of two planes over Rio de Janeiro killed 61 persons during a visit by President Eisenhower.

Airport authorities here said an investigation already underway would be intensified when the wreckage was put together and the stories of the survivors told.

'Off-Street' Parking Spoiled His Dinner

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Myron Haber was only too happy to allow an attendant to park his car in a restaurant lot while he went in to eat dinner. When he came out the car was gone. So was the attendant.

Haber went into the restaurant to inquire. "Attendant?" asked the employees. "Why, we've never had an attendant."

Bewigged Judge Listens Carefully

By STEWART MACLEOD
LONDON (CP)—With the dignity expected of a Queen's counsel, K. E. Shelley stood before a wigged judge in high court yesterday and presented his case.

"Rock-a-billy, rock-a-billy, rock-a-billy rock," he said, while the judge listened attentively with cocked ear.

"Rock-a-billy, rock-a-billy," continued the eminent QC, "rock, rock, rock."

Mr. Justice McNair studied every repetitious word that echoed through the high, paneled room. It was his lot to decide whether "Rock-a-Billy," as printed in the Sunday Pictorial had actually infringed the copyright of "Rock-a-billy."

The plaintiff in the action, Joy Music Limited, offered the opinion that "Rock-a-Billy," besides infringing the Rock-a-Billy copyright, was

"disrespectful and offensive to Prince Philip."

But this wasn't the issue.

One witness, Thomas Conner, told the judge that "Rock-a-Billy" was not to be confused with "Rock-a-Billy boogie." The latter, he said "is a square song — it has no message."

F. E. Skone James, counsel for The Pictorial, said an important point to consider was the melody of "Rock-a-Billy" is original. Conner was unable to say whether "Rock-a-Billy" derived from "Turkey in the Straw."

The judge said he was assuming that "Rock-a-bye baby" was not in the same category. Then he adjourned the hearing.

'Stone Me!' 'My Word!' 'How Nice!'

LONDON (Reuters)—"Well, stone me," said the Cockney and "My word!" said the blueblood Friday night to the news that Princess Margaret is to wed.

Public reaction to the announcement that the princess, 29, will marry photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, also 29, was one of congratulations and good wishes.

"We wish them all the happiness in the world," intoned the head waiter at the Society, one of the ritzy night clubs Margaret often frequents.

SOME SURPRISE

But there was some surprise that Margaret's fiancée was not so well known to the man in the street.

A middle-aged lady clutching an umbrella told a reporter: "Another royal wedding? How nice. Royal weddings are so wonderful, aren't they?"

In Paris, the bride of Peter Townsend, former suitor to the princess, said: "Peter and I have known about this for a long time. We are very pleased."

Canadian reaction ranged from Prime Minister Diefenbaker's "just wonderful" to CCF House Leader Hazen Argue's hope the couple will spend their honeymoon in Canada.

British Columbians were quick to note the princess owns Portland Island in the Strait of Georgia, B.C.'s gift during her 1958 visit.

HIGH ESTEEM

Montreal lawyer John Turner, stepson of B.C.'s Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and a favorite dancing partner of the princess when she was in Canada, said: "It's wonderful news. I met the chap Armstrong-Jones once before and I have him in high esteem."

Through The Eyes Of Love

Just Plain 'Mrs.' Ruled Out

LONDON (UPI)—What-ever Princess Margaret will be called after she marries Antony Armstrong-Jones, it will not be plain "Mrs."

L. G. Fine, editor of "Burke's Peerage," said the bride would be properly known as "Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret, Mrs. Armstrong-Jones." But Fine admits that particular one would not "sound right for the nation."

Most experts believed Armstrong-Jones would be given a title by the Queen before the marriage, in which case she would adopt her husband's rank, becoming Countess Margaret or the Duchess of something-or-other, or perhaps plain Lady Margaret.

Sitdown Stopped By Hoax

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—A bomb threat cut short a sit-down demonstration staged by Negro college students in Henderson, N.C., yesterday in protest against segregated lunch counters.

The 33 students from Kittrell College at Kittrell, N.C., hiked seven miles in near-freezing weather from their rural campus into Henderson, where they were joined by other Negroes.

The sitdown was staged at Rose's variety store, which had to be cleared when the anonymous bomb threat was received.

Police searched the cleared building without finding explosives and the store was reopened. The Negroes moved their demonstrations to another variety store and a drug store.

More than 300 Negroes entered the county courthouse at Montgomery, Ala., today—the scene Thursday of the first lunch counter "sitdown" in a deep south state. The Negroes came to the trial of a young Alabama state (Negro) student, Harold M. Stoutemire, charged with perjury in connection with vote registration. He pleaded guilty to a lesser offense and was fined $100.

Queen Farah Expecting

LAHORE, Pakistan (Reuters)—Queen Farah of Iran, the 21-year-old student the shah married in December, is expecting a child, well-informed sources said Friday.

Rumors of the news have been circulating for the past week.

Soft-Spoken Tony Lives by Laundry

LONDON (AP)—Soft-spoken Tony Armstrong-Jones, husband-to-be of Princess Margaret, will give up his basement-bedroom next door to a laundry next week to move into Buckingham Palace.

He's the sort of a fellow who could feel at home either place.

The 29-year-old photographer putters about his makeshift studio-apartment in a suede jacket and baggy trousers, playing jazz records and doing his own cooking.

"I used to smell it," said Mrs. Gladys Muldowney, who lives on the floor above.

The witty son of a thrice-married lawyer, Tony overcame a bout with polio in his youth.

Despite his success in photography, he never moved from his study in unfashionable Pimlico.

He achieved a minor fame among the Chelsea set for his gay parties.

None of his parties, however, matched the occasion when he lost his trousers during a coming-out dance for a debutante.

In the early hours of the morning five old Etonians, who took the view that he should not have taken up photography, invited him to leave the ballroom.

Two held his head while the others removed his trousers. He was furious with the men, especially after they declined to apologize.

As he said at the time: "It seems that it is rather infra dig to be in society and be a photographer at the same time. It seems I should be a stockbroker or something stinko with money."

NEW YORK (UPI)—The mother of Robin Joyner, 4, "rag doll" hit-run victim, appealed yesterday to the cab driver who struck and killed her daughter to give himself up.

Mrs. Flossie Joyner, 25, made her appeal Friday morning over TV and radio.

Dr. Keenleyside Will Lead Voluntary Civilian Committee

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside will head a newly-formed national committee for control of radiation hazards, it was announced here yesterday.

He said the aim of the voluntary citizens' group is to "strengthen the hand" of the federal government in Canada's bid for international control of nuclear weapons tests by the UN.

PRESS CONFERENCE

The group issued its manifesto at press conferences held simultaneously in Victoria, Montreal, Toronto and Edmonton. It said the problem of increasing radioactivity, "affecting as it does every human being on earth and every child yet to be born, is too serious to be left to scientists alone . . ."

Members of the committee—including UBC president Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, A. E. Grauer, Walter C. Koerner, and Dr. Brock Chisholm from B.C.—said they believe all Canadians should be concerned with this vitally important issue.

NOT JUST FEW

"All Canadians—and not just a few experts or officials are entitled to know the facts, as far as these can be ascertained. . . . (And) knowing the facts, all Canadians have a right and indeed a duty to make their views known as to what should be done about them."

In getting and assessing the facts on radiation, the national committee will have the assistance of a committee of scientists. Dr. Keenleyside said this group hasn't yet been formed.

The committee announced four objectives:

- Immediate cessation of nuclear tests by all countries, enforced by inspection, preferably under UN supervision.
- Intensified research into the effects of all types of ionizing radiation.
- Enforcement of regulations to minimize radiation hazards.
- Restriction of the use of radiation techniques to properly qualified scientific persons operating under conditions established by competent scientific bodies.

Dr. Keenleyside was appointed provisional chairman of the group. He said plans call for holding of a national conference on radiation hazards in Montreal "probably in April."

ALL CANADA

At this conference, said Dr. Keenleyside, policies of the NCCR will be submitted for endorsement "to a large number of like-minded people drawn from all parts of Canada."

Dr. Keenleyside said the 44-member committee represents a wide range of professions and callings and its members live in centres reaching from Halifax to Victoria.

The list includes four university presidents, representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, businessmen, newspapermen, scientists, a labor leader, artists such as photographer Yousuf Karsh, novelist Hugh MacLennan.

It contains no politicians. This was deliberate, said Dr. Keenleyside. He added: "No doubt many (politicians) would have signed the manifesto. But the committee thought it better to leave all political figures out."

All expenses of the committee will have to be met with funds raised by the committee itself.

In no way was formation of the national committee an implied criticism of the government, said Dr. Keenleyside.

ON THE SPOT

"We are not trying to put the government on the spot," he said. "The committee has been very much encouraged by the stand taken by Canada at the UN and elsewhere and it is hoped that a vigorous expression of public opinion in favor of the stand taken by the committee will strengthen the government's hand in pressing for speedy action in this vital matter."

Dr. Keenleyside said radiation hazard is the most important single issue facing the world today. He said similar committees are functioning in the U.S. and Britain, as well as in some smaller countries.

WILL DO SAME

"We hope the Russians will do the same," said the chairman. "But our own country is our immediate concern. We are not going to be responsible for continuing this state of affairs in Canada."

Keenleyside Will Lead Refugee Body

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the board of the B.C. Power Commission, has accepted the chairmanship of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Committee for World Refugee Year.

France Favors Bases

PARIS (Reuters)—France threw her doors wide open Friday for West German military bases on French soil.

President De Gaulle's government also gave wholehearted endorsement to Germany's demand for bases in other foreign countries.

Meanwhile Bonn said that Germany's Atlantic Pact allies were notified of her intention to seek bases in Spain about a year ago, well before negotiations began.

Professing no knowledge of this notification Washington yesterday told Germany that any plans for supply bases in Spain should have been cleared with NATO.

Krupp Rejects Spanish Deal

BONN, Germany (UPI)—German steel king Alfried Krupp who supplied arms for Hitler in the Second World War has turned down an offer to participate in making Spanish arms, informed industrial sources said yesterday.

No-Confidence Vote

Only Liberals Deny Support

The debate on Premier Bennett's $331,000,000 budget concluded in the legislature yesterday with the traditional vote on a motion of no confidence in the government.

But only the two Liberal members (Archie) Gibbs of Oak Bay is sick in hospital) voted against the government.

The vote was 41-2.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan explained that just because the CCF voted for the home-owner grant and some measures, it didn't mean to say "we believe in some of the fiscal hoopla of this government."

Liberal House leader George Gregory said the Liberals voted against the government because they have a lack of confidence in the government.

"Liberals are no less concerned for the sick, the needy, the home-owner and those in search of education," he said.

Loggers Win Victory

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. truck loggers, who made strong representation before a recent royal commission on road-user charges, will get widespread concessions in new government legislation to be enacted Monday.

Commercial Transport Minister Lyle Wicks Friday released the preliminary report of the commission, which urged "some immediate adjustment with respect to logging trucks."

Mr. Wicks said the government would accept the interim recommendation of the commission on certain points.

There will be immediate drastic reductions in the cost of oversize permits, with respect to width, height and length, he said.

Highway crossing charges will be reduced to a nominal level.

On commercial vehicles over 20,000 pounds, carrying poles, piles and logs, overweight permit charges will be reduced by 75 per cent and the new 1960 licence fees will be payable on request in four quarterly instalments.

Commercial vehicles from other provinces and U.S. states will be able to purchase a quarterly licence, permitting any number of trips during the licence period into the province.

Soft-Spoken Tony Lives by Laundry

LONDON (AP)—Soft-spoken Tony Armstrong-Jones, husband-to-be of Princess Margaret, will give up his basement-bedroom next door to a laundry next week to move into Buckingham Palace.

He's the sort of a fellow who could feel at home either place.

The 29-year-old photographer putters about his makeshift studio-apartment in a suede jacket and baggy trousers, playing jazz records and doing his own cooking.

"I used to smell it," said Mrs. Gladys Muldowney, who lives on the floor above.

The witty son of a thrice-married lawyer, Tony overcame a bout with polio in his youth.

Despite his success in photography, he never moved from his study in unfashionable Pimlico.

He achieved a minor fame among the Chelsea set for his gay parties.

None of his parties, however, matched the occasion when he lost his trousers during a coming-out dance for a debutante.

In the early hours of the morning five old Etonians, who took the view that he should not have taken up photography, invited him to leave the ballroom.

Two held his head while the others removed his trousers.

He was furious with the men, especially after they declined to apologize.

As he said at the time: "It seems that it is rather infra dig to be in society and be a photographer at the same time. It seems I should be a stockbroker or someone stinko with money."

NEW YORK (UPI)—The mother of Robin Joyner, 4, "rag doll" hit-run victim, appealed yesterday to the cab driver who struck and killed her daughter to give himself up.

Mrs. Flossie Joyner, 25, made her appeal Friday morning over TV and radio.

"I appeal to the cable to come forward and give himself up. I appeal to the citizens to do the same."

The little girl's body was found later under a parked car about half a mile away by a passer-by who thought it was a rag doll.

Keenleyside Leads Civilian Volunteers

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside will head a newly-formed national committee for control of radiation hazards, it was announced here yesterday.

He said the aim of the voluntary citizens' group is to "strengthen the hand" of the federal government in Canada's bid for international control of nuclear weapons tests by the UN.

PRESS CONFERENCE

The group issued its manifesto at press conferences held simultaneously in Victoria, Montreal, Toronto and Edmonton. It said the problem of increasing radioactivity, "affecting as it does every human being on earth and every child yet to be born, is too serious to be left to scientists alone . . ."

Members of the committee—including UBC president Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, A. E. Grauer, Walter C. Koerner, and Dr. Brock Chisholm from B.C.—said they believe all Canadians should be concerned with this vitally important issue.

NOT JUST FEW

"All Canadians—and not just a few experts or officials—are entitled to know the facts, as far as these can be ascertained. . . . (And) knowing the facts, all Canadians have a right and indeed a duty to make their views known as to what should be done about them."

In getting and assessing the facts on radiation, the national committee will have the assistance of a committee of scientists. Dr. Keenleyside said this group hasn't yet been formed.

The committee announced four objectives:

● Immediate cessation of nuclear tests by all countries, enforced by inspection, preferably under UN supervision.

● Intensified research into the effects of all types of ionizing radiation.

● Enforcement of regulations to minimize radiation hazards.

● Restriction of the use of radiation techniques to properly qualified scientific persons operating under conditions established by competent scientific bodies.

Dr. Keenleyside was appointed provisional chairman of the group. He said plans call for holding of a national conference on radiation hazards in Montreal "probably in April."

ALL CANADA

At this conference, said Dr. Keenleyside, policies of the NCCR will be submitted for endorsement "to a large number of like-minded people drawn from all parts of Canada."

Dr. Keenleyside said the 44-member committee represents a wide range of professions and callings and its members live in centres reaching from Halifax to Victoria.

The list includes four university presidents, representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, businessmen, newspapermen, scientists, a labor leader, artists such as photographer Yousuf Karsh, novelist Hugh MacLennan.

It contains no politicians.

This was deliberate, said Dr. Keenleyside. He added: "No doubt many (politicians) would have signed the

France Favors Bases

PARIS (Reuters)—France threw her doors wide open Friday for West German military bases on French soil.

President de Gaulle's government also gave wholehearted endorsement to Germany's demand for bases in other foreign countries.

Meanwhile Bonn said that Germany's Atlantic Pact allies were notified of her intention to seek bases in Spain about a year ago, well before negotiations began.

Professing no knowledge of this notification Washington yesterday told Germany that any plans for supply bases in Spain should have been cleared with NATO.

Krupp Rejects Spanish Deal

BONN, Germany (UPI)—German steel king Alfred Krupp, who supplied arms for Hitler in the Second World War, has turned down an offer to participate in making Spanish arms, informed industrial sources said yesterday.

No-Confidence Vote

Only Liberals Deny Support

The debate on Premier Bennett's $331,000,000 budget concluded in the legislature yesterday with the traditional vote on a motion of no confidence in the government.

But only the two Liberal members (Archie Gibbs of Oak Bay is sick in hospital) voted against the government.

The vote was 41-2.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan explained that just because the CCF voted for the home-owner grant and some measures, it didn't mean to say "we believe in some of the fiscal hoopla of this government."

Liberal House leader George Gregory said the Liberals voted against the government because they have a lack of confidence in the government.

"Liberals are no less concerned for the sick, the needy, the home-owner and those in search of education," he said.
